ST. CROIX GETS THE SHAFT AGAIN

Avis Staff Writer

St. Croix got another alarming wake up call with the announcement that Continental Airlines was dropping its service to the island.

Beginning Nov. 1, nonstop daily flights between St. Croix and Newark, N.J. will cease to exist. The jet that makes the route is a 149-seat Boeing 727.

When St. Croix gets the shaft, St. Thomas will get the lion's share. Continental will fly a 180-seat Boeing 757 between Newark and St. Thomas.

"This is another indication that we are not a competitive island in the Caribbean," St. Croix Chamber of Commerce President Jerry Koenke said yesterday.

Continental pulling out but STT untouched

"People must recognize that a lot of large private sector investors are pulling out of our market," he said.

The reason for the pullout is money.

An agent with U-Travel said, "The load factor was not there. If Continental was getting enough seats filled, they wouldn't have pulled out."

"It means a loss of seats for people, and of course they won't be bringing any tourists here and that's a blow," the agent said.

She didn't give her name because, she said, the negative publicity sometimes scares other investors away.

Koenke blamed the declining air arrivals on a poor marketing and advertising campaign operated by the government through its ad firm Greengage.

"The advertising and marketing program Greengage has provided for the last eight years certainly has not helped St. Croix and this is another indication of that," he said. "People better wake up and realize we have to become more user-friendly."

Koenke, Lt. Gov. Derek Hodge and several civic leaders were instrumental in stopping American Airlines from pulling out of St. Croix in June of this year, again because of reduced load factors.

Another such intervention with Continental seems unlikely since Koenke said the airline is "more remote corporately" than

Federal law gives V.I. death penalty

By KEVIN McLAUGHLIN

Get convicted of a federal crime on the Virgin Islands, and you might just win a trip to Florida - to sit in the electric chair.

Or you might get a one way ticket to Louisiana where you can enjoy a last meal of Jambalaya - followed by a lethal injection.

Criminals convicted in the Virgin Islands of federal capital offenses will be sent to a state where the death penalty is legal for execution, according to the Crime Bill passed last week by the Congress.

In essence, the Virgin Islands, whose law does not provide for one, will now have a death penalty.

The death penalty provision seemed to rankle local leaders.

"The Crime Bill provides many adequate educational and prevention programs," said Sen. Edgar Ross. "I am not for capital punishment here in the Virgin Islands because we have not demonstrated that we can provide the necessary means to educate people so that crime can be prevented."

Under the new procedures, the Justice Department would be required to notify the court and the defendant that it intends to seek the death penalty and indicate the aggravating factors that it intends to prove as a basis for imposition of the death penalty.

The measure also mandates division of the federal court trial into two phases when the death penalty is sought.

First, the trial to determine guilt and then a sentencing trial.

Both phases would be conducted before a jury, unless the Fishermen, cast aside by the V.I. government, must fend for themselves.

"The local government does nothing but make promises and break 'em," said Robert McAuliffe of McAuliffe Fishing Inc. "They do not support the V.I. fishing industry."

St. Croix Fisheries Advisory Committee met Monday in Christiansted's American Legion Hall to air political grievances.

"We feel like some of this stuff is being shoved down St. Croix's throat," said chairman Betsy Gladfelter, upset by V.I. fishing regulations enforced without regard to island differences.

An ecological entity, the St. Croix shelf is not part of the string of islands that include Puerto Rico and the B.V.I. It is divided from St. Thomas and St. John by 40 miles of waters 15,000 feet deep.

Many tropical fish, such as parrot fish, snappers and groupers, never cross that expanse of sea. The habitats are different and the fisheries are separate.

LOCAL ANGLERS: St. Croix fishermen set lines, prepare bait and repair their boats docked in Gallows Bay with the backdrop of Fort Christiansvaern.

A three-month "no-take" season for conch, July through September, was recently approved by the government with a new twist: fishermen must bring the shells to shore.

A letter by Gladfelter explained St. Croix's unique situation to Gov. Farrelly, who responded that he understood, but the bill passed treating the three islands the same.

"I don't think that's a very good idea," said Carlos Farchette, chief of the Department of Planning and Natural Resources.

"When the St. Thomas moratorium was almost up, they started to go crazy," Farchette said of the five-year conch ban there. "St. Croix said, `look, we have regulations.' Instead of implementing our regulations, they wanted to better them. Bringing the shells to shore was all St. Thomas' idea."

DPNR's bureau of fish and wildlife said measuring the shells is the only accurate way to determine the conch's age, for enforcement purposes.

"Certain things we have to

I wish to start my column with a clarification.

Contrary to statements in a column (which was not written by me) on Sunday, Jimmy Hamilton has not "passed the baton" and will remain on the bandstand Saturday evenings at the Buccaneer. He will play at least for the first set of the night.

"I have been at the Buccaneer for more than 20 years, I may have some one help me out, but that does not mean he is in control," said Mr. Hamilton. This renowned musician went on to say that the statements that Jeff Bergstrom made to the AVIS were simply an "effort to promote himself."

So, those of us who feel The Jimmy Hamilton Quartet is a weekend standard have nothing to fear. Truly great men, such as Mr. Hamilton, have staying power, although some may say that "the flesh is weak."

Back to a social note, I had a splendid dinner Thursday, with Jan Hanley, Trish Resevic and Lady Ruddie George, Danish Consul and knight of that Northern land.

We dined at Duggan's on the East End. The food was fantastic and the company at my table and in the restaurant was even better. We feasted on grilled tuna, Whisky Lobster and Veal Scorpio expertly served by Val.

Seen amongst the diners were, Lee Rohn, Dan Lawrence, Alex Holton, Charles Fisher, Stephen and Pamela Leach with their son, Sam, Donald Fisher and Jeannie Duggan. Visiting Dr. Michael Potts, a cardiologist at St. Croix Modular Hospital, was Mrs. Hesternou and Dr. and Mrs. Elihe-Potts.

By the way, the best of fortune to Craig Knock and Pam Weller. The couple will be married in Omaha Nebraska on Sept.3. Shortly thereafter they will return to St. Croix where they are both long time residents.

Saturday, a bitter-sweet affair was held at the "Dip." A party was held to bid farewell to Kevin Rose, a man known and loved by every one on St. Croix that has been involved in theater, as a spectator, dancer, singer, actor or simply behind the scenes.

Everyone who has spent any time on the stage packed Linda Early's establishment.

The evening took the form of a musical and lyrical tribute to Kevin. Patty and Bob Grisar hosted a Murder Mystery dinner. Afterwards Lorraine Durand and Linda sang "The Rose" in Kevin's honor. Bob Arrendal sang "Your Feet's To Big" from "Ain't Misbehavin,'" Paul Hess, Dennis Gribb, Tom Thompson and Marty Merrick also performed to the crowd's delight.

Linda Early sang quite a few tunes. By far she can give a rendition of a torch song that will strike you to the depths of your soul. No one on island can sing "Stormy Weather," the way she can. Walt Julio joined Linda in the song, the crowd went wild.

All in all the evening was the only way to bid Kevin, who has been so long on the musical scene of St. Croix, farewell. He sang for us before he departed the restaurant. His choice, the finale of the "Wiz," "When I Think of Home."

Sunday was rather busy. The day started with a tribute to the Coast Guard. The Navy league of St. Croix held an elegant luncheon at the Blue Marlin for the officers of this stalwart appendage of the nations armed forces.

F.Y.I- Did you know the Coast Guard was started by Alexander Hamilton when he was Secretary of the Treasury; that the Coast Guard performed the first ice watches in response to the sinking of the Titanic; that they served in the Vietnam War; that in 1976 the Coast Guard Academy became the first United States military academy to admit women; the list goes on.

These facts were delivered to the crowd by Officer Mark True (who looks remarkably like the Prince of Wales with his pronounced Hanoveran ears).

The party was attended by members of the Coast Guard, stalwarts of the Navy League and members of the Coast Guard Auxiliary. The list includes, John Stuart-Jervis, Alan Cecil, Candia Atwater, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Parnes, Manal Missar, Iman and Jose Delrosario, Dick and Pricey Best, Bent Lawaetz, Aurea Stamatakis, Val Diaz and Dorothy Martel.

After the luncheon of lasagna, salad, barbecued chicken, rice and beans, it was off to the Whim Plantation for many of the attendees. The reason? Nothing other than "Starving Artists Day."

The event was well received, the lawn was thronged with guests and exhibitors.

What would an exhibition of St. Croix artists be without the magic of the died silks of Yahmaya? Shawna Richards and Karole Oversen-McGregor displayed their line of children's accessories. Olivia Andrew's table was ladened with her native seasonings, guava tarts, hot sauces, native pickled cucumbers, mibi and ginger beer.

Stephanie Schoyer's craft was the 18th century Caribbean art form of canvas floor-cloths. These brightly colored cloths were once used as an alternative for area rugs. They were made of heavy canvas that was primed, painted and sealed with oil. To-

American Airlines plans job cuts at the top

DALLAS (AP) - American Airlines plans to fire managers and administrators to help convince its unions they won't be the only ones suffering to make the carrier profitable.

The airline said yesterday that a management restructuring will be part of a plan to cut costs by $1 billion a year - $750 million from labor and $250 million in other expenses.

The company aims to get roughly $75 million of that from its staff of 10,000 managers and administrators, spokesman Tim Smith said.

The restructuring is the latest of several cost cutting moves American has made in recent years. The company has grounded planes and has eliminated 5,000 jobs since the end of 1992 as it attempts to turn around four straight years of losses.

The management streamlining will be studied for four to five months and the number of layoffs has not yet been determined, Smith said.

American chief financial officer Michael Durham told analysts in a conference call Tuesday it is possible the job reductions could run into the thousands, Smith said.

Durham also said a cost-cutting plan aimed at American's 18,000 reservations and other agents, who are not unionized, will be announced in about a month.

The moves come while American enters a difficult period of negotiations with its unions.

Contract talks are ongoing with the Allied Pilots Association, which represents American's 9,500 pilots. The carrier is seeking $300 million in savings from the pilots, Smith said.

In addition, American begins arbitration in October with the Association of Professional Flight Attendants. The union for American's 20,000 flight attendants waged a five-day strike against the airline last Thanksgiving over contract terms that have yet to be resolved.

American also said it hepes the Transport Workers Union, representing its 27,000 mechanics and ground handlers, will agree open negotiations earlier than usual on their contract, which becomes amendable next March.

That idea was dismissed Tuesday by Ed Koziatek, a union vice president, who said it's not prepared to start early.

Representatives of the other two unions didn't immediately return telephone calls. Smith said yesterday's announcement of management cuts is not an attempt to pressure the unions, but the timing could help show them that the entire airline is being streamlined.

CTC to focus on cruise tourism, transportation

Jamaica will host the 18th Caribbean Tourism Conference on Sept. 7-11. The program, to be held at the Jamaica Grand Hotel, is predicted by the CTC to be a "milestone meeting for regional tourism development."

The agenda will include seminars on "Resolving the Caribbean Air Transportation Dilemma" and "Managing Cruise Tourism." Panel discussions will be held on the topics where the attendees will be invited to offer recommendations that could help shape the future of Caribbean tourism.

David Simmons and Professor Ralph Carnegie will sit on the panel. Both men have recently completed studies on the impact of tourism on the Caribbean marine environment and the establishment of a regulatory frame work for cruise ships in Caribbean waters. They will be joined by CTO secretary general, Jean Holder and Bermuda's minister of tourism Jim Woolridge. Editor in Chief of Travel Weekly, Alan Frederiks will moderate the event.

The theme of the conference is to develop a quality tourism product among Caribbean nations. The CTO said that they plan to seek a better line of communications between state side travel agents and Caribbean destinations to achieve that goal.

"The bulk of the visitors to the Caribbean are generated through travel agent requests and therefore it is important that governments and other partners in the travel and hospitality business listen to what they have to say," said Holder.

A seminar on world tourism performance will be led by secretary general of the World Tourism Organization, Antionaio Enriquez Savignac. The class will include anticipated trends and projections on tourism in the region into the 21st Century.

The keynote speaker of the conference will be Jamaica's Prime Minister Percival Paterson. Sir Colon Marshall, chairman of British Airways will also deliver an address. Sir Colin led the financial turnaround of British Airway's fiscal status. After their privitization this year, British Airways announced a $450 million pretax profit for year ending March 31. According to the CTC the world's airlines lost $4.1 billion overall during the same period.

Redfield: Hodge will sign casino bill

Avis Staff Writer

Sen. Holland Redfield II is so confident Acting Gov. Derek Hodge will sign the gambling referendum bill into law that he's already written him a letter of thanks.

Well, not exactly.

"I'm looking forward to the lieutenant governor waking up, smelling the coffee and putting his signature on the bill," Redfield said yesterday.

Gov. Farrelly is off island on vacation until today, according to Acting Government House Press Secretary Pamela Richards.

Until then, Hodge is in the driver's seat.

And although Farrelly has until Sept. 5 to act on the referendum legislation, Redfield said Hodge will take advantage of his boss' absence and put his signature on it.

"I predict that while Farrelly is away Hodge will sign it," he said. "I would be really surprised if he vetoed it."

A 1992 gambling referendum failed on St. Croix by 32 votes.

In light of the island's crushed economy, Redfield drafted legislation to put the question to the people again in November.

A majority of the Legislature agreed with the proposal, but Farrelly didn't. Two weeks after the Senate approved, the bill was vetoed.

Redfield redrafted it, resubmitted it and again got enough support from his colleagues to send the bill back up to Government House.

This time, he said, the proposal will come back with a signature instead of a stamp on it.

AG, INS, DHS meet on care of children of illegal aliens

Attorney General Rosalie Simmonds Ballentine held a meeting, on Aug. 26, with officials from the Immigration and Naturalization Services (INS) and the Department of Human Services to address the increasing problem of providing services and housing for children of illegal aliens.

"During the past week federal officials have delivered 12 children to the Virgin Islands Department of Human Services, due to the arrest and detention of the children's parents as illegal aliens. As a result, Human Services' resources are being overburdened," said Ballentine.

While illegal aliens parents are being processed by the U.S. Attorney's Office, the Department of Human Services and other government agencies have been forced to provide social and medical services to their children.

"The purpose of the meeting was to seek the assistance of INS officials Leroy Frederick, officer in charge, and Ellington Hodge, supervisory special agent, in dealing with the financial obligations imposed upon the Virgin Islands Government in caring for the children," the attorney general said.

The attorney general also noted that the children require housing, food, clothing and medical attention. Antoinette Moron, district manager for the Department of Human Services stated, "there are not enough foster homes for local children and the care of "alien" children places an additional burden on resources which are already inadequate". Most of the recent illegal aliens are Haitian, and officials from the Immigration and Naturalization Services will attempt to contact resident Haitians to obtain placement for Haitian children while their parents are being processed. INS officials also pledged to seek monies which can be used to reimburse Human Services and other government agencies for services provided to the children.

STX accident victim still in coma in P.R.

Family and friends have been keeping a round-the-clock vigil at Michael O'Reilly's hospital bed since he was air-lifted to Puerto Rico after he was involved in a head-on traffic accident early Sunday, a friend said yesterday.

O'Reilly, the owner of O'Reilly's Telephone Center on St. Croix, has been in a coma since the accident.

"He's in critical condition but still very much alive," said Denise Lewis, a friend and colleague. "He's not on life support or anything and we're optimistic he's going to pull through."

Lewis said that O'Reilly's family, including his wife, flew to Puerto Rico Sunday to be by his side when he comes out of his coma.

"He needs all the love, support and prayers he can get right now," she said.

The outpouring from the community has been so overwhelming, Lewis said, that family members requested that the media refrain from publishing the name of the hospital.

The family is very appreciative of the sympathy they have received, but the family needs its rest too, Lewis said.

She said that the phone calls have been coming into O'Reilly's telephone service center at a steady rate.

"Michael has a lot of friends, both on St. Croix and the mainland," she said.

According to police, O'Reilly was traveling north on Northside Road in Estate Glynn shortly after 4:30 a.m. Sunday when the accident occurred.

His 1994 Nissan collided with a southbound 1990 Mitsubishi Mirage driven by Everton Rutherford of the Harborview apartment complex.

Lt. Melbourne Clarke, the VIPD Traffic Commander, said O'Reilly's car ran off the road and through a barbed-wire fence. Rutherford told police that as he rounded a curve in the road, he saw a pair of headlights in his lane.

Both O'Reilly and Rutherford were taken by ambulance to St. Croix Hospital.

After X-rays and a cat scan, O'Reilly was taken to Puerto Rico.

Clarke said O'Reilly, who was unconscious at the scene and has not gained consciousness, was reported dead sometime Monday morning.

Rutherford suffered forehead cuts that required 16 stitches to close. He was admitted to the hospital for observation.

Clarke said O'Reilly was wearing his seatbelt at the time of the accident. He did not know whether Rutherford was wearing one. Neither man was thrown form his car. "The circumstances surrounding the crash are still under investigation," said Clarke.

Fire razes 50 acres in La Vallee

By KEVIN McLAUGHLIN

St. Croix firefighters yesterday battled their second major brush fire in as many days on the island - this time on the north shore.

The raging fire burned a little more than 50 acres in the La Valle section, witnesses estimated.

It took several firefighters to finally get the fire under control yesterday aftenoon.

"The smoke was yellowy-orange and then you could see the flames," said one witness.

"It was burning pretty quickly and then the fire department came and had things under control," she said.

On Monday firefighters contained a fierce brush fire that burned over 200 acres on the island's East End before finally burning itself out in the evening.

The fire's location - in the remote hills near Point Udall - made fighting it nearly impossible, said St. Croix Fire Chief Pedro Encarnacion.

"It was just a case of not letting it near any structres or near any people," he said.

Fortunately, he said, there are no buildings in the region.

Instead, the six responding firefighters from the Cotton Valley and Richmond Hill stations made sure the fire, which began around 2 p.m. Monday, didn't spread to populated areas.

Often, especially in the high rough terrain areas of the island like the East End, letting the fire burn itself is the only course of

Primary to narrow Democratic field

The results of the Sept. 13 primary election will dictate who the democratic gubernatorial team of Derek Hodge and Alfred Heath support in the delegate to Congress race.

"They will not - as Democrats and with six Democrats vying for that seat - support any candidate until after the primary election," campaign manager Rhys Hodge said yesterday.

He said it would be improper for them to endorse any candidate until the democratic party has chosen its person.

"If they pick one, it will get all the others fighting," said attorney Hodge.

Running for delegate as Democrats are: former Judge Eileen Petersen, Health Commissioner Donna Green, Senate President Bingley Richardson, attorney George Hodge, Dept. of Education information officer Peter Goodwin and former Government House Press Secretary James O'Bryan.

Lt. Gov. candidate Holland Redfield, Republican running mate of Julio Brady, said the Democrats are "involved in genocide" because of the number of people running under that party's banner.

"The internal workings of the party are ruthless and reflect desperation," he said. "After the primary, I don't know who's going to be around to pick up the pieces."

When asked to speculate on who he thought would win the democratic spot, Redfield said, "At this point it's a crap shoot. It's going to be the rank and file that determines who's going to carry the democratic banner."

Publisher Michael Paiewonsky recently entered the delegate's race as an independent.

Although he's a staunch Democrat, Paiewonsky said he entered the contest too late to run with the party.

Surprisingly, Paiewonsky has endorsed the Brady-Redfield team in the gubernatorial race.

Redfield said his team welcomes support from any quarter, but will be supporting fellow Republican Sen. Edgar Ross as the next delegate.

Brady echoed his running mate's statement and said Ross was the best person for

Tribute to Lorendon

Capt. Lorendon Boynes Sr., a pioneer of the V.I. boating industry, recently died.

"Throughout the years, whenever he was particularly happy about something, he would say, `How sweet it is!'" said Senator-At-Large Almando "Rocky" Liburd. "I will always remember him for using that phrase and the happiness and joy I saw on his face as he smiled when he said it."

Boynes, founder of Transportation Services Inc., was honored a few months ago by the 20th Legislature for his accomplishments in the boating industry, and they renamed Cruz Bay dock as the Lorendon Boynes Sr. Dock.

"Let us remember him as the navigator on the seas, the tamer of the waves, the master of the ocean," said Sen. Judy M. Gomez.

Cops: No clues in candyman's murder

By KEVIN McLAUGHLIN

Police on St. Thomas were still looking for information surrounding yesterday's murder of Whitfield Richards, a native of Antigua who became the territory's 29th murder victim.

Richards, a candy vendor, was slain Monday morning when he was shot in the back. He was pronounced dead at 11:20 a.m.

Police had not established a motive for the killing nor identified any suspects.

The previous record for homicides in the territor was set in 1989, when 27 people were slain.

Richards death was the 21st on St. Thomas, which is also believed to be a record.

Anyone with information surrounding the shooting is encouraged to call the VIPD on St. Thomas.

Police on St. Thomas yesterday reported the following crimes:

- Marvin Smith, 39, of 19 Contant, was arrested on Monday at 3:15 p.m. and charged with Burglary 2nd Degree.

Police spokesman Lt. Bruce Hamlin said that smith was charged in an incident that took place on August 6, 1994 in Estate Altona.

Bail was set at $15,000.

Senator hails T'dad independence

Sen. Judy M. Gomez yesterday hailed the 32nd anniversary of independence of Trinidad and Tobago which takes place today.

Gomez notes that the people in the Virgin Islands are very unique, for they are a mixture of culture blending. As a Caribbean people we are united by the common denominator of being of West Indian heritage.

"The Trinidadians and Tobagonians who have made the Virgin Islands their home have not only graced our island with their fine cuisine and popular music. But they have contributed significantly to the growth and development of the Virgin Islands. There is no question that their rotis, fine cooking, and calypso have become an integral part of Virgin Islands living," she said.

U.S. cautiously optimistic about Cuban refugee crisis

By GEORGE GEDDA

WASHINGTON (AP) - One week after more than 3,200 Cuban boat people headed for U.S. shores in a single chaotic day, a series of encouraging developments have Clinton administration officials breathing somewhat easier.

U.S. officials attribute a sharp drop in the numbers of boat people in the last few days to a combination of bad weather and round-the-clock appeals for Cubans to stay home.

"Growing numbers of Cubans understand that they will not come to the United States if they are picked up in the Straits (of Florida)," Undersecretary of State Peter Tarnoff said Monday night.

By then, only 118 Cubans had been intercepted by the U.S. Coast Guard throughout the day. The final tally for Monday was 295.

Tarnoff also said Cuban authorities have begun to take "some small steps" to counsel Cubans not to flee by boat. Until now, the authorities did nothing to dissuade Cubans from leaving so long as they did so in their own vessels.

In addition, President Fidel Castro has ordered that any vessel with minors aboard be prevented from leaving Cuban shores. The White House and State Department welcomed the move.

And Panama's incoming foreign minister, Gabriel Lewis Galindo, said his country is willing to receive up to 10,000 Cuban refugees for six months if the United States houses them at American military bases along the Panama Canal and takes responsibility for them.

Another encouraging sign, Tarnoff said, is that about 225 Cubans of the more than 13,000 taken to the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, have asked for permission to return home.

Tarnoff, interviewed on PBS' "MacNeil-Lehrer NewsHour," said arrangements for their return will be discussed with Cuban officials on Wednesday or Thursday when U.S.-Cuban migration talks resume in New York. The last such talks were held in December.

Michael Skol, the second-ranking official in the State Department's Latin America bureau, will head the U.S. delegation. He will be joined by Justice Department and immigration officials.

The administration hopes the talks will "facilitate safe and orderly and legal migration," said White House press secretary Dee Dee Myers.

Rafael Dauza, spokesman at the Cuban diplomatic mission, said Tuesday the Cuban delegation will be headed by Ricardo Alarcon, a former foreign minister who is president of the Cuban National Assembly, or parliament.

"You can be sure we will be free to talk about any subject," Dauza said.

Cuba wants wide-ranging talks with the United States but has agreed to limit the initial phase to immigration questions. The Clinton administration has said the talks will be restricted to that issue.

One administration goal is to expand opportunities for legal emigration from Cuba. The number of legal migrants is relatively small, partly because many Cuban exiles have not become U.S. citizens. Non-citizens have fewer opportunities than citizens under U.S. immigration law to arrange for relatives abroad to join them in the United States.

With some 14,000 Haitian boat people remaining interned at Guantanamo Bay along with the inflow of Cubans, more than 2,200 dependents of American personnel on the base are to be flown back to the United States beginning Wednesday so water and electricity can be diverted to the refugees.

Navy officials said there also was concern that the refugees could pose a security problem in the future.

Four Caribbean nations agree to join U.S.-led military coalition

By ROBERT BURNS

KINGSTON, (AP) - Four Caribbean nations have agreed to provide peacekeepers if the United States decides to invade Haiti to remove its ruling elite, senior U.S. government officials said yesterday.

Foreign ministers of Jamaica, Trinidad, Barbados and Belize told U.S. officials meeting here yesterday they would contribute to a force of 266 soldiers to participate in the peacekeeping phase of a military operation to remove Haiti's military leadership. (See related stories on pages 8, 10 and 11).

Guyana, the Bahamas, and Antigua had not made a final commitment of forces pending further internal consultations, the U.S. officials said. It was not immediately clear why the three balked. Earlier, U.S. officials said they had received assurances the three would participate.

The United Nations called on Haiti's military leaders on July 31 to step down and authorized a possible U.S.-led invasion to restore elected President Jean-Bertrand Aristide to office.

U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali said in New York yesterday that a U.N. attempt to prepare for Haiti's military rulers to leave peacefully failed when Haitian leaders refused to meet with U.N. envoy Rolf Knutsson in the Dominican Republic. Knutsson, who returned Monday, was to prepare for formal negotiations on the Haitian military leaders' departure.

"We tried to have a peaceful implementation of Resolution 940 but we have not been successful," Boutros-Ghali said. "The Security Council will have to decide what it wants to do or the group of states that have sought the mandate (for the invasion) ... will have to take their own decision."

In Kingston, representatives of the countries participating in the meeting of the 13-nation Caribbean Community condemned Haiti's refusal to meet with the envoy in this "latest diplomatic initiative."

At a news conference following the meeting of Caribbean foreign and defense ministers, U.S. officials applauded the nations' support..

"We consider what happened here today in Kingston a watershed," said Strobe Talbott, deputy secretary of state, who attended the meeting with Deputy Defense Secretary John Deutch. "We hope the military dictators in Haiti will get the message."

CARIBBEAN NEWS

Deutch said the United States would immediately begin providing logistic support for the participating Caribbean military forces. "The time for action has arrived," Deutch said. "There can be no doubt in anybody's mind that the multinational force is going to Haiti."

Deutch and other U.S. officials have said President Clinton is determined to act with military forces in Haiti - either to stabilize the government after a peaceful departure of its military regime, or to forcibly remove the leaders.

One senior U.S. government official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said: "We are very close to exhausting all peaceful means" of restoring democracy in Haiti. But the official said the administration was not yet ready to issue a final ultimatum for Haiti's ruling military elite to leave the island.

The Caribbean countries participating in today's meeting issued a joint statement of support for the July U.N. resolution authorizing use of all necessary means to restore democracy in Haiti.

"Our governments are equally united in their determination to take all necessary means to carry out the Security Council mandate to restore the democratic process in Haiti," they said in a joint statement read by Erskine Sandiford, prime minister of Barbados and chairman of the meeting.

They also said the killing Sunday in Haiti of the Rev. Jean-Marie Vincent, a supporter of exiled President Jean-Bertrand Aristide, was "one more unwelcome and painful reminder of the total unacceptability of the prevailing situation in Haiti and of the need for urgent and decisive action." The planned U.S.-led force would include thousands of troops, supplemented by police, civilian technicians and administrators. Its mission would be to forcibly remove Haitian army chief Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras and the rest of the military leadership if they do not quit the country first. If the junta leaves, the coalition's task is to restore order.

D.R. debt restructuring

SANTO DOMINGO(AP) - This Caribbean country has slashed its public debt with foreign banks by 84.7 percent, under a restructuring plan published in Santo Domingo newspapers yesterday.

The government's debt was cut to the equivalent of $191 million from $1.2 billion, according to a statement by central bank Gov. Mario Reid Vittini and Finance Secretary Luis L. Taveras that appeared in the papers.

"With this, the country's credit and tradition of honoring its international compromises is rehabilitated," the statement said.

Total interest payments on the debt were recalculated and reduced by $140 million.

The government bought back $355 million in debt, at the rate of 25 cents per dollar value of debt, for a total investment of $88.7 million.

The Dominican central bank sold another $505 million in debt in the form of bonds backed by 30-year U.S. Treasury zero coupon bonds.

EDITORIAL:

ETHNIC HATRED: HOW AMERICA IS DIFFERENT

One of the ideas that constitutes the American identity has long been that America is profoundly different from the rest of the world.

Those who crossed the oceans to these shores put the old and intractable ethnic and racial quarrels behind them in the Old World and began life afresh. America was without the original social sins of monarchy, feudalism and impacted age-old memories.

On your $1 bill, the back of the Great Seal shows two Latin mottoes: "Novus Ordo Seclorum," or "New Order of the Ages"; and "Annuit Coeptis," or "Born Under Favorable Auspices" - "Favored of the Gods." On the dollar bill's face is a portrait of George Washington, the Father of His Country.

The fact that the dollar bill makes such claims is not accidental. As the father, George Washington is the ONE; his obelisk in Washington, D.C., is a single dominating spire.

Furthermore, the dollar bill is democratic. Those Latin messages are not on the $20 bill or the $50. And the bill is green, like Eden. The bill is a democratic ticket to the fresh American future. It puts Europe behind it.

The ancient hatreds of the Old World, if they did wash up on these shores, were usually dissipated rapidly. There is little in America resembling the ancient and enduring grievances found in the Old World.

Dr. Vamik Volkan, an ethnic Turk who came to the United States from Cyprus, and teaches at the University of Virginia, has been doing some important work in the ethnic field. As reported recently in The New York Times, Dr. Volkan describes a Europe much different from America.

The Times also reports that Dr. Eugene Hammell, who specializes in the Balkans, observes that today's Serbs remember the 1389 defeat of the Serbs and their Christian allies at the hands of the Muslim Turks at the Battle of Kosovo:

"Every Serbian child learns about Kosovo. It was the beginning of 500 years of Turkish occupation, which the Serbs remember as oppression." The Muslims of Bosnia recall "the massacres of Muslims by Serbs in World War II, and dating back to the 19th century."

Remarkably, current Bosnian Serb leaders played heavily on the Battle of Kosovo in fomenting the current violence. They dug up the remains of King Lazar, who was killed by the Turks at Kosovo, and took them to Serbian villages, to stir up hatred toward Muslims and "to reaffirm their shared history and identity".

In the United States, the old animosities are fading between North and South, despite the best efforts of General Sherman in burning Georgia. The Republicans - the Republicans! - may well nominate a Southerner for president. They might even nominate a black man, Colin Powell.

Many blacks have made it solidly into the middle class, and America has spent hundreds of billions to do something about the underclass. We hear about American racism. Compared with what? Russia? China? Japan? India? Africa?

The old idea that America is profoundly different just happens to be true. America was, and remains, a fresh start, innocent of many of the sins of the Old World.

BOE not burning the midnight oil

LETTER

Dear editor:

I was surprised to read the article entitled "Education Flounders Under Creque-Official" that appeared in the Aug. 26, 1994 edition of the St. Croix AVIS. The Board of Education has the authority and the power to do many things if it so desires, and it is about time that Mr. Garcia and others stop hiding behind the Commissioner's skirt when they are accused of being a say-everything, do-nothing organization".

The Board of Education, for approximately eight years, was charged with the responsibility of promulgating rules and regulations for private schools. Mr. Garcia was the chairman of the board when the rules first were to be promulgated. Eight years later, Mr. Garcia and the board have done nothing to move forward. They leave the children of this territory and their records vulnerable because rules are not in place. They rely on the department to get the job done.

Where was Mr. Garcia when the Paul Douglas Scholarships (scholarships that would have provided training for students wanting to pursue a career in teaching) were not applied for or requested. I wrote to the Board of Education and asked that it apply since only the agency that administered Federal territorial scholarships, in our case the Board of Education, was eligible. The board never applied and thousands of dollars in scholarships were lost. This year, because the Federal government changed the rules and placed funds under the Department's Consolidation Grant, it enable the Department of Education to grant approximately 18 scholarships to students — students who will fill the needed positions in math, science and other disciplines in the coming years.

And where was Mr. Garcia when a newspaper was attacking the young women of Central High School, accusing them of prostitution? Does it take a law to stand up for our students? Does someone need to grant him that authority? Why does Mr. Garcia think it is a mistake to invest "$34 million in the education of our children? Is a 300-student capacity vocational-technical center too large? Is an 1,100-student capacity senior high school too large? Our children deserve this investment and more.

When the Department of Education's budget was cut mercilessly, to the detriment of the students in this territory, Mr. Garcia was not heard from.

The leadership of the Department of Education has produced the first comprehensive policy and procedural manual in the history of the department. It has produced new curricula in math, science, health, language arts, and other areas that will allow our students to move into the 21st century and reach world-class standards.

We haven't had new curricula in many cases for over 20 years and in some cases, such as foreign languages, never. For the first time there are standards for the transitional grades of third, sixth, and eighth and the assessment to measure progress. Students will understand what they should know and be able to demonstrate.

Before Mr. Garcia comments on the SAT scores, he should go back and do comparisons of the scores reported during the 15 years he has sat on the Board. He would find that, in recent years, our students have recorded a steady gain. This year is the first time in over three years that students have not made gains on the SAT and I think we all know the reason for this.

Further more, our students have received national recognition and held national student offices over the past few years. Our graduation rates have increased and our schools, complete with computer labs, are moving rapidly on the information highway.

The only thing I can see left in the 17th century is the thinking of a board member ill-informed and uninvolved in the progress of education. It does not take authority to care, to adopt a school or class, or to offer help when it is needed. Some board members have said that the board could manage with less funding. One tangible thing the board could do is to transfer some of its funds to the Department of Education to help with the purchase of new textbooks. This would be tangible evidence of support and positive use of their authority.

As we move closer to the 21st century and continue to restructure our schools with tech prep, middle school concepts, and distance learning, the question is not whether the board should have more power, but whether we need board members who don't carry out their responsibilities, who prefer confrontation to cooperation, who fail to realize that the Department of Education is larger and more encompassing than the commissioner, and who constantly talk about power instead of children.

Frankly, I am tired of those who behave in that fashion and I hope the community is also.

Sincerely,
Linda Creque, Ph.D.
Commissioner of Education

Clinton's best strategy in '96: Lose

By JOSEPH SPEAR

I have fashioned what I believe to be a novel strategy that might guarantee Bill Clinton a two-term presidency.

He should contrive to lose the election of November 1996, spend the following four years trashing the hapless Republican who happens to occupy the White House, then run again in 2000.

In the extremely partisan, mean-spirited, slash-attack political atmosphere that has dominated the past 25 years, I figure the best place to be is out of office. The only person to enjoy a fairly successful tenure was Ronald Reagan. Look what being in got Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford, Jimmy Carter and George Bush. Single terms, that's what. (OK, credit Nixon with 1.5.)

Look what being in has gotten Bill Clinton. Everything he has done since being sworn into office, with the possible exceptions of deficit reduction, a favorable economy and the NAFTA treaty, has earned him the opprobrium of the media, politicians of all stripes and the public at large.

There are days when the man couldn't please an amoeba. We are all familiar with the waves of criticism that regularly roll in from the reprobates of the right. Pat Robertson suggests that Clinton's counsel and pal Vince Foster may have been murdered. Jerry Falwell hawks videos suggesting Clinton may be implicated in numerous deaths in Arkansas.

But how about this from the conservative middle: "Rarely have the personal character flaws of a president so eviscerated the policy priorities of his own presidency...The result...is the image of a president reduced to a comic figure." That comes from Business Week.

You sort of expect the immutable left to give the moderate Clinton a hard time, and they do. Columnist Alexander Cockburn of The National refers to him as "President McMuffin." Essayist Christopher Hitchens, speaking on National Public Radio last May, had this to say: "He is a man who has no principles and no ideas.

He is neither competent nor good in point of ideology."

But how about this from the liberal middle: "Bill Clinton's dilatory, casuistic response to the great crime in the Balkans was not only shameful, it also marked a moment in the history of American foreign policy. This administration is transforming the only superpower in the world into the only abdicating superpower in the world." That comes from The New Republic.

So here is the solution, Mr. Clinton: Do not run for the presidency in 1996.

If that seems too drastic, do your best to give a respectable showing, but for heaven's sake, lose. Let Dan Quayle or Dick Cheney or Bob Dole or Phil Gramm or William Bennett or Patrick Buchanan demonstrate their inability to run this anarchic contraption we call a democracy. Let one of them write a budget, devise a health plan, deal with Haiti.

For four years, never give them a day's peace. Question every move they make and sic a couple of independent counsels on them. By the year 2000, I expect you'd be looking pretty good.

There is a precedent, you know. Grover Cleveland was both our 22nd and our 24th president, serving from 1885-1889 and from 1893-1897. He was succeeded and preceded by Benjamin Harrison, who obviously bombed in his efforts to woo the public.

If you are given to fancy and illusion, you have to wonder whether Grover Cleveland and Bill Clinton and metaphysically linked in some way. Both despised the press. Both were conservative Democrats (by normal standards). Both were governors (Cleveland of New York). Neither saw military service; indeed, Cleveland was the first post-Civil War president not to have actively fought in that conflict.

And both men survived sexual scandals that would have destroyed other pols. Cleveland won the presidency after acknowledging he was the father of a bastard child ("Ma, Ma, where's my pa? Gone to the White House, ha ha ha").

Will they share yet another experience? If Bill Clinton wants to serve two terms, he would do well to think on it.

VIEWPOINT

Saga of racism unfolds in South

By SARAH OVERSTREET

The small town of Wedowee, Ala., continues to fascinate, although the reasons for that fascination change as its saga unfolds.

First, it was almost unbelievable this winter when, on the 30th anniversary of some of the most significant civil-rights activity in our history, Wedowee's high-school principal threatened to cancel the prom if interracial couples attended. Suddenly, it was 1964 again.

Next, the charge leveled at Principal Hulond Humphries by Revonda Bowen, the daughter of a black mother and white father, that he had said her parents made a "mistake" by having her, raised blood pressures all over the nation. Humphries denies the charge; Bowen won a $25,000 settlement from the school district after her confrontation with the principal, which was alleged to have happened in an assembly.

But the most compelling aspect of the drama may be the deja vu of listening to the testimony of Wedowee citizens today, months after Humphries tried to cancel the prom and only weeks after arsonists burned the high school to the ground.

Just as it was 30 years ago, white citizens claim surprise to learn that there were any racial tensions in Wedowee before all this prom fuss, and black citizens say the incident was the spark that finally fueled their long-smoldering fire of resentment.

In interviews, many whites blame the media for creating a brouhaha where before there had existed only harmony. Black counter that there was plenty of hidden racism in Wedowee, but they had merely learned to get along by going along.

"There wasn't a problem as long as blacks stayed in their place," the Rev. Henry Sterling of Wedowee told The New York Times. "But now the blacks have risen up and it has drawn a line through the middle of the community."

These are exactly the sentiments we heard 30 years ago: whites professing amazement at black unrest, and blacks saying they were finally giving voice to long pent-up frustrations. I remember hearing my Southern relatives wonder aloud why on earth anyone would think blacks wanted to integrate. "They're perfectly happy in their own churches," one of my great-aunts said. "It's all these outside agitators from the North who're giving them these ideas."

The event that triggered the Wedowee trouble, the high-school prom, piqued my interest from the start. Friends of mine were an interracial couple in southwest Missouri back in 1967, when they were singled out for a variety of abuse:

School administrators regularly collared Billy and lectured him, and forbade him and Dora to walk anywhere near each other on the school campus. They couldn't sit together at basketball games or on buses bringing them to and from school. They were warned that if they tried to go to the prom together, they would be expelled.

Today they have been married almost a quarter of a century. Billy is an employment counselor; their son was a basketball star at the same school that wouldn't let them sit together 27 years ago. The son is nearing graduation from a college he attended on scholarship, and Billy and Dora have adopted a small niece born with several birth defects. Simply put, they are pillars of the community that once scorned them.

Back in Wedowee, Revonda Bowen is learning the emotional price of speaking out. She has stopped spending the nights at the houses of friends whose parents marched down Main Street in support of Humphries. A former close friend of her father, a man who once gave her and her boyfriend a tow when they ran out of gas, went on TV to denounce handholding by blacks and whites. He now hangs a Confederate flag outside his house.

All of us who have loved a high school where we have been treated less than fair — and that includes most of us — mourn the torching of Randolph County High School. But perhaps it takes a Wedowee once in a while to remind us how far we have to go.

Killing of priest portends era of violence against clerics

By LISA M. HAMM

PORT-AU-PRINCE, (AP) - The ambush slaying of a priest and supporter of exiled President Jean-Bertrand Aristide may foretell an era of open violence against Haiti's activist clergy, a prominent priest warned.

The Rev. Jean-Marie Vincent, gunned down late Sunday outside his home, was the first priest ever assassinated in Haiti.

"Probably it is the beginning and we have to expect that many others will follow," the Rev. Antoine Adrien said at a news conference Monday. The death shocked the pro-Aristide community and shattered an apparent taboo against killing priests that had protected the clergy after the military seized power in a September 1991 coup. "This was a message to Aristide," Claudette Werleigh, a minister in Aristide's government-in-exile, said by telephone from Washington. "They're showing that nobody in Haiti is safe anymore." In a statement from Washington, Aristide called Vincent "a champion of democracy, self-determination and empowerment."

Secretary of State Warren Christopher called Vincent's death "a tragic and sad reflection of the state of brutal repression and violence that characterizes life in Haiti yesterday."

Gunmen waiting in a car across the street from the Congregation of Montfortain Fathers headquarters shot the 49-year-old Vincent, said Jean-Yves Urfie, coordinator of the Creole-language weekly Libete. Authorities quickly took away Vincent's body and car, Urfie said, reading a statement signed by 53 priests and nuns of the Haitian Conference of Religion. The body had not been released as of late Monday, Adrien said.

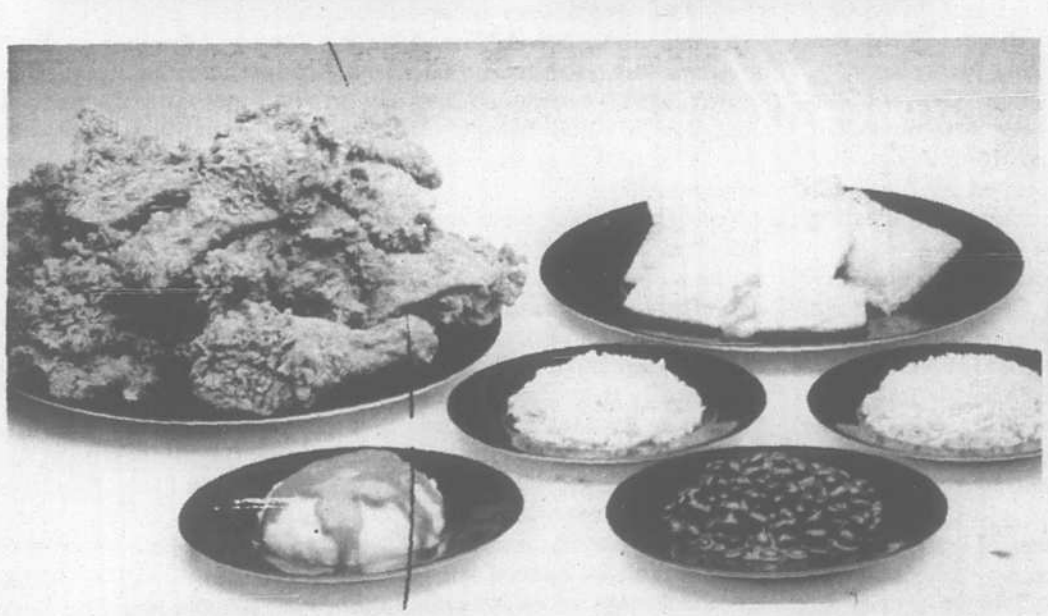

Friends said Vincent had recently received death threats, which he feared anticipated a purge of Aristide's supporters.

Vincent saved Aristide's life on Aug. 23, 1987, by diving between him and a band of thugs with machetes during an election campaign. Vincent suffered head wounds in the attack.

Hundreds of members of Tet Ansanm (Heads Together), a peasant movement he led in Haiti's remote Northwest District, had been killed that July by former members of the Tonton Macoutes, the dreaded militia of Haiti's 29-year Duvalier dynasty, and by peasants loyal to large landowners.

The November 1987 elections were canceled after months of the army-orchestrated terror. Aristide was elected by a landslide in December 1990, but was overthrown the following September. Vincent continued his work with the poor. He raised money for grass-roots groups, helped peasants find better markets for their crops and channeled money from Europe, Canada and the United States to small neighborhood businesses.

U.S. urges military to probe slaying of Aristide supporter

By LISA M. HAMM

PORT-AU-PRINCE, (AP) - The United States urged Haitian army leaders yesterday to investigate the assassination of a pro-democracy priest, and a Catholic colleague said new bullet holes have been found in the body at the morgue.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Stanley Schrager held out little hope that the military would seek out the killers of the Rev. Jean-Marie Vincent, who once saved the life of exiled President Jean-Bertrand Aristide.

"We're not naive and unrealistic," Schrager told reporters. "It's not something that we count on ... given the justice system we have at this time."

No one has been brought to justice for the political killings of up to 3,000 people, many of them Aristide supporters, since soldiers in 1991 overthrew the elected Aristide, himself a Catholic priest. U.N. human rights monitors say the vast majority of the killings are conducted by the soldiers themselves or allied civilian gunmen.

CRISIS IN HAITI

"They have gone ahead with complete impunity," said Schrager of the military. His comments came hours before U.N. Secretary General Boutros Boutros-Ghali called off a peace initiative, saying Haiti's military leaders had refused to meet over the weekend with his representative.

The United States meanwhile lined up four Caribbean allies for a planned invasion to kick out the military and restore the constitutional government.

A fellow Catholic priest, the Rev. Jean-Yves Urfie, told The Associated Press on Tuesday that a friend of Vincent went to the morgue Monday and found the priest's body dumped on the ground with a bunch of other bodies.

The friend said Vincent's corpse sported a number of new bullet holes not present when he died, including one in the head.

"It's typical," said Urfie, coordinator of the pro-Aristide Creole language weekly Libete.

The Vatican, which typically issues denunciations of priest killings, has not commented on Sunday's assassination. Many Haitians see the Vatican, which opposes liberation theology taught by Aristide and others, as an ally of the coup leaders.

D.R. crew held for hurling Haitians overboard

AGUADILLA, Puerto Rico (AP) - U.S. officials said yesterday they have arrested four Dominicans and accused them of tossing overboard three Haitian refugees they were smuggling by boat.

The Haitians survived after swimming more than two hours to reach shore near the eastern Dominican city of Higuey on Aug. 24, a U.S. Border Patrol statement said.

"We do often have people who are forced off at machete point before they get to shore here," said Gary Labbe, deputy chief of the Border Patrol in Puerto Rico. "Mainly it's just to get rid of them. They tell them 'jump, get off the boat, swim to shore.'"

Smugglers do this because they typically approach this U.S. commonwealth in frail wooden boats at night, and if they find high swells or a rocky shore, they don't want to risk landing, Labbe said.

CRISIS IN HAITI

Last year two Dominican women died after they were forced into large swells several hundred yards off the northwestern coastal city of Aguadilla, Labbe told The Associated Press.

Since Oct. 1, the Border Patrol has captured 3,886 migrants entering Puerto Rico by sea. Thousands of foreigners, mostly Dominicans, Cubans or Chinese, cross the 90-mile Mona Channel to enter U.S. territory here each year.

In last week's case, the 25-foot boat carrying 11 Haitians and about 20 Dominicans left near Higuey at 3 a.m. Aug. 24 headed for Puerto Rico, the Border Patrol said.

The Haitians, most of them artists and childhood friends, later told authorities that each had paid between $1,000 and $2,000 to be smuggled to Puerto Rico, where they were to be put up in a hotel then taken via plane or boat to Miami. Some refugees said they had given the captain all their jewelry.

The Haitians said three of their companions were ordered overboard with knives held to their throats by the Dominican crew. When they refused, they were thrown overboard. Two were forced out a half hour offshore and the third two hours offshore.

The Haitians said they thought the three - Jean-Marie Levelle, 39, Jean-Marie Pierre, 24, and Fritz Moise, 40 - were singled out because they had paid less for the voyage and the boat was overcrowded. A Haitian who protested had his hands bound by the Dominican crew, Haitians said.

The Border Patrol said they made telephone contact with the three that swam back to the Dominican Republic.

Study: 740m pounds of fish dumped in the North Pacific

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) - The fishing industry dumped more than 740 million pounds of edible fish overboard in the North Pacific last year, says a new study that blames most of the problem on huge "factory trawlers."

The discarded fish - most of which died - could have provided 46 million meals, said the study's author, Larry Cotter.

Rick Lauber, chairman of the North Pacific Fishery Management Council, an industry-government panel that is considering suggesting new restrictions, called the report "startling."

"But when you consider they're probably misreported and could be much higher, it is even worse," he said.

In 1992, Cotter estimated that 507 million pounds of fish were tossed overboard. The 1993 study used more reliable estimates that fishermen and on-board federal observers provided to the National Marine Fisheries Service, Cotter said Monday.

The total 1993 catch in the Bering Sea and Gulf of Alaska exceeded 4.6 billion pounds.

Cotter's Juneau consulting firm, Pacific Associates, conducted the study for the Alaska Department of Fish and Game.

The waste has grown along with a bottomfish boom in the North Pacific. Schools of pollock, cod, sole and other lowly species are harvested by a large fleet, including huge factory trawlers that process the fish at sea.

Bottomfish are made into fish sticks, breaded fillets and surimi paste, used to make imitation crab meat and other fish products.

The study said much of the catch was tossed because it was too small or large to be processed on the factory trawlers, which drag large, bag-like nets that scoop up both wanted and unwanted species.

Other fish were discarded because they were an unprofitable species or sex. For example, most fishermen keep only the female rock sole because their eggs are a high-priced delicacy in Japan. The discard rate for rock sole was 69 percent, compared with 16 percent for all the region's species combined.

All fishing boats discard unwanted species. But in the Bering Sea alone, trawlers accounted for 94 percent of the bottomfish waste and smaller boats just 6 percent, the study said.

Methods of limiting waste include trawling slower and increasing the size of the net mesh, which allows young fish to escape.

"There's better ways to fish to reduce the amount of bycatch (out-of-season catches that are required to be tossed) and discards. But some companies could just give a damn," said Greenpeace activist Peggy Pagels of Seattle.

The fishing management council is to consider mesh size restrictions when it meets in Seattle from Sept. 27 to Oct. 5. The National Marine Fisheries Service must approve any proposed changes.

The current system has one overall catch quota for each season and no limit on the number of ships. The ships that catch the largest number of the most profitable fish before the quota is reached make the most money.

Smaller operators and shore processors want boats to be required to keep all or most of their catch. The American Factory Trawler Association favors changing the quota system and limiting the number of fishermen.

That way, "You could go at your own pace and you could develop alternative products that would take advantage of some of the fish that presently are discarded," said Joe Blum, the trawler association's executive director.

Lockheed, Martin Marietta in $10b merger

NEW YORK (AP) - Lockheed Corp. and Martin Marietta Corp. are heading for one of the biggest defense mergers ever, a $10 billion deal that will combine the makers of the stealth fighter and Titan 4 rocket under one roof.

The stock-swap merger announced yesterday reflects continuing industry consolidation driven by sharp cuts in defense spending.

Lockheed Martin, as the new company will be called, will employ about 170,000 people and have approximately $23 billion in annual sales, making it the nation's largest defense contractor.

"This merger is the next logical step in the continued growth and prosperity of Lockheed and Martin Marietta," said Daniel M. Tellep, Lockheed's chairman and chief executive.

The companies said the merger, which both boards have approved, will allow them to cut costs in providing defense, space and other high-tech products to government and civilian customers.

Job eliminations are expected. But Tellep and his Martin Marietta counterpart, Norman Augustine, wouldn't say where jobs might be sacrificed.

"By taking this action, I believe we will cut jobs, but in the long term we will create jobs," Augustine said at a news conference yesterday.

The merger is subject to regulatory approval and shareholder acceptance. The companies said the deal is expected to close in early 1995.

John Deutch, deputy defense secretary, said Defense Department would study the merger for possible antitrust violations and advise regulators on its findings.

"There appear to be very serious antitrust questions," he said. Such mergers are "generally a good idea from the viewpoint of the U.S. taxpayer, but this is a big enough one that the competitive aspects deserve careful study."

Trading in stock of the two companies was delayed for about 35 minutes this morning on the New York Stock Exchange. At late morning, Lockheed was up $7.75 to $73.75 while Martin Marietta was down $1.37 at $46.87, both in active trading.

Tellep will retain his titles after the merger. Augustine, 59, Martin Marietta's chairman and chief executive officer, will be president, then become chairman and chief executive when the 62-year-old Tellep retires.

The agreement calls for Lockheed shareholders to receive 1.63 shares of stock in the new company for each share they now hold. Martin Marietta shareholders will get one new share for each one they own.

Active discussions between Lockheed and Martin Marietta began about five months ago, and the two boards met during the past few days, said a source close to the negotiations who spoke on condition of anonymity.

In April, Martin Marietta lost a $1.93 billion bid to merge with Grumman Corp. when Northrop Corp. offered $2.17 billion.

Martin Marietta, based in Bethesda, Md., has already completed much of its consolidation in the rocket business by purchasing General Electric Co.'s aerospace business and General Dynamics Corp.'s space systems division.

Calabasas, Calif.-based Lockheed has also joined in the consolidation trend with the purchase of General Dynamics' F-16 business in 1993.

The new, Bethesda-based company will be organized around four major sectors: space and missiles, aeronautics, electronics and information and technology services.

Two Muslim countries to blank population talks

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) - Saudi Arabia and Sudan are boycotting next week's United Nations population conference in Cairo following criticism by Muslim clerics that the meeting violates the principles of Islam.

The Saudi representative at the United Nations in New York sent a message earlier this week "regretting they are not going to participate," an official at conference headquarters in Cairo said yesterday.

Sudan's government announced Monday night it would boycott the meeting and urged other Muslim nations to also withdraw because the meeting would result in "the spread of immoral and irreligious values."

Saudi Arabia and Sudan are the first countries known to withdraw from the U.N.-sponsored International Conference on Population and Development, which is expected to draw some 15,000 people to Cairo beginning Sept. 5.

The leaders of two other predominantly Muslim nations canceled plans to attend the conference. Prime Minister Tansu Ciller of Turkey said yesterday that a lower-level official would head her country's delegation. Bangladesh's prime minister, Khaleda Zia, made a similar announcement Saturday.

Also yesterday, an Egyptian court rejected a suit by Muslim fundamentalists aimed at blocking the conference.

The suit argued that Egypt, which says its legal code is based largely on Islamic law, could not hold a conference which runs counter to Islamic principles. But the court said the matter was outside its jurisdiction because President Hosni Mubarak had the right to invite the conference to be held in Egypt.

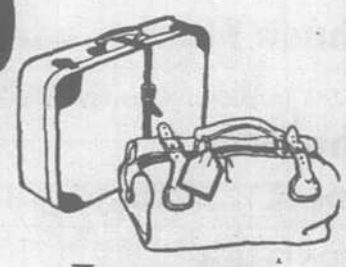

The meeting is intended to set guidelines for the next 20 years for halting the growth in world population and encouraging economic development, particularly in the Third World.

The conference official who revealed the Saudi decision would not disclose details of why the oil-rich nation was withdrawing. The official spoke on condition of anonymity.

Sudan's minister of social planning, Ali Osman Mohamed Taha, said in announcing the boycott that Sudan was trying to organize a forum for opponents of the meeting.

War hits 'Gorillas in the Mist' research station

KARISOKE RESEARCH CENTER, Rwanda (AP) - Shards of glass and torn files litter the forest floor, evidence that Rwanda's deadly civil war has reached high into the Virunga Forest, home to half the world's rare mountain gorillas.

In the forest that straddles Rwanda's border with Zaire and Uganda, the research camp featured in the movie "Gorillas in the Mist" stands ransacked and nearly deserted.

But what has happened to the shy primates themselves?

Only about 600 mountain gorillas remain on Earth. Some 320 lived in Virunga Forest before the civil war erupted anew in April.

A group of Rwandan trackers returned in early August and have traced the base's three gorilla groups used for research. But about 60 gorillas usually shown to tourists are still missing.

CRISIS IN RWANDA

"There's no reason for major worry right now," said Jose Kalpers of the International Gorilla Conservation Program, which helps run Karisoke.

"As long as there's no disturbance in the forest, the gorillas have no reason to move - it's not as if they're listening to the radio.

"But there's no surveillance at all and the potential risks are quite high," he added.

In mid-July, Karisoke's 30 employees and another 80 Virunga Forest rangers fled advancing Rwandan Patriotic Front rebels and are now refugees in Zaire.

The victorious rebels now form Rwanda's government and are encamped just south of the forest. Over the border, Rwanda's defeated Hutu army feverishly plots revenge.

The forest is a tense no man's land, parts of which are said to be mined. Without rangers, it is open to antelope and buffalo poachers, who can kill or ensnare gorillas on purpose or by mistake.

Up to 3,000 Rwandan villagers and their livestock fled through the forest in July, but Kalpers said gorillas probably took refuge up the slopes only to return later to their home ranges.

Leonidas Munyatarama was equally confident as he stepped through the debris at the camp founded by Dian Fossey, the American naturalist.

"Even if they fled over the border, they'll be back. Gorillas don't need passports," he said.

Fossey, whose campaign to protect the gorillas was the basis for "Gorillas in the Mist," was murdered in 1985 and buried at the camp among the remains of some of the animals she loved.

Her grave was untouched by the latest upheaval, but her cabin, where her successors continued research work until July, was ripped apart: chairs and desks overturned, files scattered on the floor, windows smashed.

"We don't know if it was soldiers or poachers," said Munyatarama, who returned to Karisoke last week, the first research student back since the staff's panicked flight.

"The first thing is to get all the trackers back, so we can start searching for all the gorillas, start research, start patrolling."

Easier said than done.

An attempt by the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees to ferry the trackers home ended in disaster Aug. 24 when thugs loyal to Rwanda's old government attacked them as they waited for U.N. trucks.

Tracker leader Jean-Bosco Bizumurenyi, who said at the time he wanted to return "because gorillas are more peace-loving than men," was nearly beaten to death with rocks. The other trackers and their families fled and the repatriation plans were suspended.

Rwanda's new government hopes to generate revenue by rebuilding the tourist industry that had grown up around the gorillas and is urging the trackers to return.

Jackson's threat adds drama to talk of challenge to Clinton

By JOHN KING
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - At a recent fund-raiser, the talk in one circle turned quickly to whether President Clinton would face a Democratic primary challenge in 1996. "Are you talking about the Harkin rumors or Kerrey rumors?" a Democratic senator in the group asked.

Clinton's political troubles and worries within the Democratic ranks have spawned persistent speculation that he might be challenged. Last week two-time Democratic candidate Jesse Jackson said he is considering a primary challenge or even an independent candidacy.

"One of the ways to get the attention of this administration and the country is to challenge the direction and priorities of the leadership," Jackson said Friday.

Beyond Jackson, the rumors - and there is little evidence they are anything more - center most often on Democratic Sen. Bob Kerrey of Nebraska, who lost to Clinton in the 1992 primaries and has had a stormy relationship with him since. "Certainly the Kerrey talk is everywhere," said former Sen. Paul Tsongas of Massachusetts, another 1992 Clinton primary rival. For the record, Tsongas is happy to say, unequivocally, that "I would not run in '96." So is Sen. Tom Harkin of Iowa, yet another of the 1996 Democratic candidates. His name recently surfaced in rumors that a Democratic senator was planning to challenge Clinton. Hogwash, says Harkin.

Kerrey, however, isn't so emphatic.

"There is unquestionably a break - we are not close," Kerrey says of his relationship with Clinton. "But the speculation that I am going to challenge him in the primaries is completely untrue."So then he absolutely, positively, won't run?

"I can't imagine the circumstances," Kerrey said. "I really can't. But I have learned never to say never."

According to one Democratic activist, a party fund-raiser disgruntled with Clinton recently approached Tsongas to see if he was interested in a 1996 challenge. According to the activist, who spoke on condition of anonymity, the fund-raiser, Chicago commodities broker Richard Dennis, said Kerrey was his second choice.

President Clinton

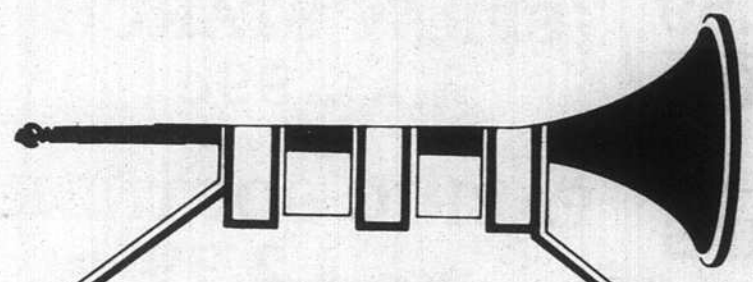

Rev. Jackson

Asked if the account was accurate, Tsongas hesitated and said, "I would not recall one conversation from another."

Dennis gave $1,000 to Kerrey's 1992 presidential campaign and later gave Clinton $1,000 after Kerrey dropped out. He also contributed more than $200,000 to the Democratic National Committee for the 1992 election cycle. But he is said to be unhappy with Clinton and has not made any major contributions to the party this year; he has given $1,000 to Kerrey's 1994 Senate re-election bid.

Dennis did not return telephone calls seeking comment, and Kerrey says 1996 has never come up in his conversations with Dennis. Beyond the intrigue of the rumors is a sober reality for the Clinton White House: Such talk would not exist, or at least not flourish, if the president was not viewed to be in serious political trouble. As the Kerrey and Harkin rumors have made the rounds, Democratic Party officials have kept quiet. But Jackson's harsh public criticism of Clinton last week, and his talk of running either in the primaries or in the general election as an independent, brought a reminder of the toll of challenges past.

STJ students get discount passes for Vitran buses

Public Works Commissioner Leo H. Francis announces that all full time public, private, parochial and university students residing on the island of St. John, are entitled to a 25 percent discount on all Vitran buses. Processing of the Vitran discount cards will be conducted for St. John residents on Friday, September 2, at the administrator's office in Cruz Bay from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m.

All students within the Virgin Islands are entitled to a 25 percent discount on all bus trips on Vitran. The program allows students to receive the discount on any Vitran bus. However, when students are boarding the bus, they must present the special student discount card.

"As Vitran has become a territorial entity, we want to ensure equitable treatment for all of our patrons, including those commuting from St. John," said Francis.

"This is just one of the many ways that Vitran provides residents and visitors with a viable mode of mass transportation," he continued.

Commissioner Francis advises any student living on St. John who wants a Vitran discount card to contact the department's personnel office staff to schedule an appointment to have them made and issued to them. On St. John call 776-6346; on St. Thomas call 776-4844, extensions 105, 106, or 107. On St. Croix call 773-1290, extensions 215, 216, 217, 218 or 219.

It is imperative that the students schedule their appointments prior to September 2 to ensure that the materials and information are correct and reflect the number of anticipated participants.

Participating students must be prepared to present their social security cards, proof of enrollment in any Virgin Islands school and photo identification. A $5 fee will be charged for the discount card and must be paid before the card is released.

Arts and crafts show scheduled

Gallows Bay, in Christiansted will be the site of the Columbus Day Weekend Arts and Crafts Show.

Artists are invited to display their works for exhibition and sale on Saturday, October 8 and Sunday, October 9, 1994, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the arcade and galleries of Gallows Bay Marketplace. This will be the second in a series of successful shows in the area. More information can be secured by calling 772-7246. Exhibit space will be allocated on a First Come - First Served basis. Exhibit space is being rented for $25.00.

The Columbus Day Arts and Craft Show is being sponsored by The St. Croix Shrine Club and American Express Travel Related Services. Proceeds from the Arts and Craft Show, and the related Golf Tournament will be used to defray the costs of sending children from the Virgin Islands to the Shrine Hospitals in the United States where the care is provided at no cost to the child or to the family.

A dream honeymoon in paradise

ST. CROIX, U.S.V.I. — St. Croix's newest beachfront resort, the Tamarind Reef Hotel, offers newlyweds the perfect beginning to their married life with its dream honeymoon in America's Paradise, the U.S. Virgin Islands.

For honeymooners looking to do a little bit of everything on their vacation, the Tamarind Reef Hotel offers four- and eight-day packages with as little or as much activity as the couple desires. Starting at $423 per couple for four days/three nights, and $885 for eight days/seven nights, the Tamarind Reef Hotel makes a visit to this undiscovered Caribbean treasure not only a must, but a welcome value, too.

The honeymoon packages include complimentary snorkel equipment, two hours of snorkel instruction including a guided tour of the underwater trail located directly in front of the hotel, two hours of windsurfing instruction, an ocean kayak guided tour of Green Cay, free use of windsurfers and ocean kayaks, and a trip to Buck Island National Park aboard the Teroro II with Captain Heinz for beach combing and snorkeling the famous Buck Island underwater trail.

Of course, newlyweds are free to enjoy unlimited lounging on a stretch of perfect white sand beach in front of their spacious room overlooking the Caribbean Sea and pristine Buck Island in the distance. The Deep End Bar, set at the pool deck, offers guests tropical beverages, light snacks and service with a smile.

Sailing and deep sea fishing charters leave the adjacent Green Cay Marina daily for excursions into St. Croix's crystal blue waters and world-renown underwater reefs.

Every couple honeymooning at the Tamarind Reef Hotel is welcomed with a complimentary cocktail, and may enjoy a daily continental breakfast, mingle at the weekly manager's poolside cocktail party, and receive his and hers t-shirts, champagne and flowers in their room.

Each of the hotel's 46 rooms are comfortably appointed with a refrigerator, coffee maker, optional air conditioning, ceiling fan, telephone, in-room safe, satellite tv, clock radio, hair dryer, vanity mirror and balcony overlooking the romantic Caribbean Sea beyond.

For honeymoon reservations, contact the Tamarind Reef Hotel directly at 1-800-619-0014.

GHS in Confratute '94

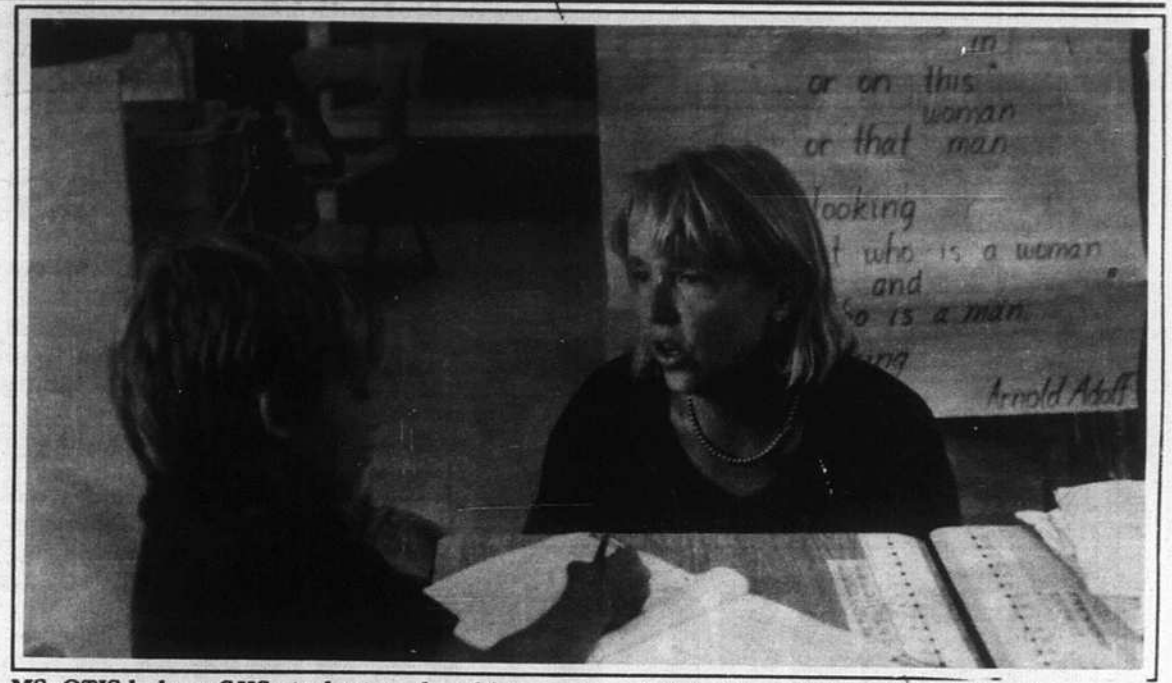

Sarah Otis, Lower School Director of the Good Hope School, recently participated in Confratute '94, the international conference/institute on educating gifted and talented children and youth at The University of Connecticut.

Now in its 17th consecutive year, Confratute, sponsored jointly by the Special Education Center, the School of Education at The University of Connecticut, and the Connecticut State Department of Education, has distinguished itself as one of the world's most definitive conferences/institutes on gifted education. A primary feature of Confratute is the converging of prominent leaders in the field upon a single site for two weeks to interact and consult with teachers, administrators and parents eager to learn about exceptionally able youngsters. Who they are, how they learn differently from other children, and what parents and school personnel need to do to help them develop their creative abilities and talents are explored in depth by the participants.

Confratute '94 was attended by some 600 educators from 44 states, and U.S. territories, the Bahamas, the Philippines, Bahrain, Canada, China, Singapore, South Africa, and several European nations.

Ms. Otis has attended several conferences on gifted and talented education and two years ago established an Enrichment Program at Good Hope. Each year the program has expanded and been improved upon. GHS recently applied and was accepted by the Department of Education State Office of Special Education to pilot the Joseph S. Renzulli Schoolwide Enrichment Model. As a result of this opportunity, Good Hope has created a "School Enrichment Team." This new team will be responsible for facilitating the implementation of a schoolwide program. This expansion will enhance our existing program by providing enrichment for every child in kindergarten through sixth grade.

Mini courses will be offered utilizing existing faculty and staff along with volunteers in the community. Course offerings might include any of the following: telecommunications, agricultural production, rocketry and aero space, astronomy, puppetry, cartooning, storytelling, watercolor technic, bridge, chemical reactions, stamp collecting, poetry writing, pre-Colombian St. Croix, law, architecture, marine biology, and environment. These courses will meet once a week for nine weeks. Any member of the community who would be willing share their expertise on these subjects or in another area, can contact Ms. Otis at the school, 772-0022.

MS. OTIS helps a GHS student explore his creative abilities through individual attention as part of the Enrichment Program

Defense wants to dismiss charges in Jordan slaying

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) - Defense attorneys asked yesterday that charges be dismissed against one of the two teenagers charged with killing Michael Jordan's father, arguing the prosecutor has withheld crucial evidence.

The evidence includes one reported sighting of James Jordan after the date he was supposed to have been killed and two reports indicating other people talking about committing a similar crime, said defense lawyer Woodberry Bowen.

"Most of these reports would have been in the district attorney's hands way back in the fall," Bowen said.

Bowen represents Daniel Andre Green, who with Larry Martin Demery is charged with first-degree murder, armed robbery and conspiracy to commit armed robbery in the elder Jordan's death last July. Demery and Green were charged Aug. 15, 1993.

Judge Gregory Weeks said he would review the reports and rule on the motion by the next hearing, which may be held in October.

District Attorney Richard Townsend said he made the decision to hold the reports back, but that the defense had gotten or would get everything it was entitled to.

"In a case like this, there are a lot of incredible claims that are made," he said.

Bowen said whatever the nature of the claims, the defense hadn't had the chance to investigate them until now. The prosecutor apparently hasn't followed them up in an effort to exclude other possible suspects, he said.

"There is no order this court can enter that can give us our year back to go back and pick up our trail," Bowen said.

Bowen said Townsend gave the defense 23 statements from individuals from as far away as Florida, New York and California. The statements were handed over on Friday and should have been provided much earlier and certainly no later than a discovery conference held in July, he said.

Tropical depression menaces Mexico

MIAMI (AP) - A tropical depression neared the coast of Mexico yesterday with a potential for 5 to 10 inches of rain that could produce flash floods and mudslides, meteorologists said.

At 2 p.m. EDT, the depression was at 21.3 degrees north latitude and 96.5 degrees west longitude, or about 100 miles southeast of Tampico, Mexico, with maximum sustained wind of about 35 mph.

It was moving west across the Gulf of Mexico at 8 mph on a track to hit the Mexican coast between Tuxpan and Cabo Rojo.

"I don't see any chance of this system turning north or anything like that," said hurricane specialist Lixion Avila at the National Hurricane Center in suburban Coral Gables.

The Mexican government had earlier issued a tropical storm watch for the coast from Nautla to La Pesca. Rainfall totals of 5 to 10 inches were expected, hurricane specialist Max Mayfield said late Monday.

Presidential persuasion pars the hole

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass. (AP) - He sucked in his breath, puffing out his cheeks like tiny balloons, and whipped the golf club from ear to toe. "Whack!" Bill Clinton was on course again yesterday - a golf course, of course.

"Come back around!" Clinton yelled to the tiny white ball whizzing toward the woods. "Come back around!"

Heeding the presidential directive, the ball curved left and landed pretty on the fairway, 210 yards away from Clinton. The president spun on his heels and gave a high-five to his golf partner, Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer.

His second shot landed 20 feet short of the flag, giving him a nice uphill angle to the hole. He missed his first putt, but sank the second.

Four shots on a par-4.

"In the zone already?" he was asked.

Clinton, who has avoided reporters like a sand trap on his Martha's Vineyard vacation, responded only with a smile and a thumbs-up.

Clinton, who began his day with a 3.2-mile jog, has played golf three out of four vacation days. Washington lobbyist Vernon Jordan has accompanied him each time.

Archer and Chicago investment banker David Schulte rounded out Tuesday's foursome. Schulte attended college with Clinton at Oxford and Yale.

Clinton's golf games have featured a host of rich-and-famous foursomes. He has played with billionaires William Gates Jr. and Warren Buffett, and not-so-rich rich men like Jordan and producer-director George Stevens. Actor Paul Glaser played with him Sunday.

The president will leave his island paradise briefly on Labor Day to visit Maine, press secretary Dee Dee Myers said. Details of the trip were not released, but Myers said Monday he may attend a rally at Bath Iron Works, Maine's largest employer.

Not everybody can play or party with Clinton, so the local cable service has another way to get a message to the family. Call the office with a note and the service will scroll it on a public-access channel. Some examples:

-"Bill, Dude, keep up the good work!"

-"Bill, hope together we can build a socialist utopia."

-"Bill. It's Mike. Come over to the house for a burger."

Man charged with threatening to kill president

FALMOUTH, Mass. (AP) - A construction worker was charged with threatening to kill President Clinton after allegedly saying that's why he wanted to travel to Martha's Vineyard.

Glenn R. Armstrong, 26, of Uxbridge, pleaded innocent Tuesday in Barnstable District Court and was ordered to undergo 20 days of psychiatric evaluation at Bridgewater State Hosptial.

Armstrong was taken into custody Monday at the Steamship Authority ferry terminal in Wood's Hole. Police said he told a ticket agent he needed to kill the president, who is vacationing at Martha's Vineyard.

The agent alerted police who made the arrest after Secret Service agents questioned Armstrong for several hours.

Armstrong, who is self-employed, was charged with threatening to commit murder, said Secret Service agent Mike Johnston of Boston. Johnston refused to say whether Armstrong was armed.

White House Press Secretary Dee Dee Myers said from the Cape Cod resort that the Secret Service is investigating but "beyond that they are not commenting." Because of bad weather Monday, Clinton left the home where he is staying only once, for dinner at the home of author William Styron.

A radio show for working mothers

By LISA GENASCI

NEW YORK (AP) - "Hi! I'm Debbie Nigro and it's 'The Working Mom on the Run,' or the show also called, 'What the Heck Happened to my Life?' ... I lived that life, I'm nuts and I'm proud of it!"

After that frenetic introduction, Nigro puts down her coffee cup, stubs out a cigarette in an ashtray on the cluttered table in front of her and swings the studio chair around for a two-hour verbal tussle with the microphone.

So opens another broadcast of Nigro's increasingly popular weekly radio show, now heard Saturday mornings on 100 stations nationwide.

The theme of her program is working mothers. But one recent show touched on such divergent subjects as bad hair color, the perils of hot dogs, Rwanda and dental care.

Nigro, a self-described talkaholic, bantered with guests including Dr. Martha MacGuffie, a mother of eight just back from Zaire, and Barbara Taylor Bradford, the best-selling novelist.

People called in from across the country, many just to say they were enjoying the show. A mother put her 18-month-old son on the phone for a few gurgles; a grandmother said she listens every week.

Nigro, 37, calls her 20-month-old program - her most successful venture in a long broadcasting career - "an entertainment show that does standup comedy sitting down, a family show geared toward working mothers."

It's not talk radio, she said, although there are callers, and it's not an advice show, although she has lots of advice to give, on topics ranging from easy nutrition to hair removal.

"I'm everyone's slightly nuts best girlfriend," said Nigro, a striking woman with a cascading mane of dark hair she says is normally redder. "I'm someone you would be drawn to at a party, someone who's not hard to approach."

The mother of 6-year-old Alexis, she makes frequent reference in the show to her daughter and to her boyfriend and business partner, Jeff Troncone.

She skewers her harried life, which forms the basis for the show.

"The show comes out of her head," Troncone said.

Judsen Culbreth, editor in chief of Working Mother magazine has been on Nigro's show several times. She said Nigro's strength is "getting news out there in a palatable form."

"It's exactly what working mothers need," Culbreth said. "They need answers but they also need humor and wit. It helps you feel more normal if you can laugh with other working mothers. It makes you feel connected."

In sum, the show, produced by Nigro's company Sweet Talk Productions, gives listeners an idea of what working parents face in the '90s.

Avon Products Inc. has sponsored Nigro almost since the program's inception, when it was broadcast by only one station in suburban New York.

"When Debbie came to us we had a visceral reaction to her and to the show she played to us," said Delia deLisser, director of U.S. advertising for Avon. "She showed an understanding of the complexity of women's lives and added humor to the experiences they share."

Part of what makes the show so appealing to working mothers, said Sharon Owens, Nigro's publicist, is that it mirror's Nigro's own, sometimes difficult life. Talent and humor have carried her through.

Nigro started her radio career as an intern at a New Rochelle, N.Y., radio station where she anchored the evening news. Later, as an undergraduate at Ithaca College she worked at the college radio and TV stations.

Public Notice

Water samples taken on June 15,1994 indicated that the drinking water supply at the Diamond Cinema had exceeded the maximum contaminant level for coliform bacteria.

The management of the Diamond Cinema recommend water not to be for drinking during that time.

The Department of Planning and Natural Resources sets drinking water standards and has determined that the presence of microbiological contaminants are a health concern at certain levels of exposure. If water is inadequately treated, microbiological contaminants in that water cause disease symptoms such as diarrhea, cramps, nausea. These symptoms, however, are not just associated with disease-causing organisms in drinking water, but also may be caused by a number of other factors other than the water in the Virgin Islands water system.

The management of Diamond Cinemas is working to correct this situation which we believe is associated with the disinfecting equipment and was correctd by late afternoon June 17, 1994.

Anyone requesting information about this situation should contact the Diamond Cinema management at 778-5200.

Surgeon General's son gets 10 yrs. for drug sale

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) - U.S. Surgeon General Joycelyn Elders' son was sentenced to the minimum 10 years in prison for his first offense: selling an eighth of an ounce of cocaine to a police informant.

Mrs. Elders fought back tears as Kevin Elders was led away Monday. His father, Oliver, slammed his hands into a steel door in frustration and repeated, "They never even gave him a shot!"

Elders, 28, had claimed entrapment, saying the informant who set up the July 29, 1993, deal had threatened to expose his drug addiction and embarrass his mother at her confirmation hearing.

Circuit Judge John Plegge said the law forced him to impose the minimum 10-year term. Elders could have been sentenced to life for the $275 sale.

At a separate hearing yesterday, Plegge set a $10,000 bond to free Elders pending his appeal. He said Elders would be required to continue a drug treatment program and report every two weeks to the probation office for drug testing.

"He'll have as supportive an environment as we can provide," Mrs. Elders told the judge. Elders was expected to be freed yesterday, after posting the required $1,000.

Elders wasn't arrested until Dec. 19. The warrant was issued a week after his mother suggested at a Dec. 7 National Press Club luncheon that the government should study legalizing drugs as a means of reducing the crime rate.

Elders has acknowledged having a decade-long drug problem, including a three-year cocaine addiction. He said at his trial that his parents were aware of his drug problems, yet never discussed it.

"They really didn't know how bad it really is," he said.

In a recent letter to Plegge, Mrs. Elders asked for leniency for her son, and said that when he needed her most she was too busy with politics, the Arkansas Democrat-Gazette reported Monday.

Mrs. Elders was nominated for surgeon general on July 1, 1993, six months after President Clinton first announced his intention to pick her. She won Senate confirmation Sept. 7, 1993, after delays by Republicans who opposed her outspoken advocacy of sex education, condom use and abortion rights.

Man charged with killings wishes he had shot more

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) - A 26-year-old man charged with murdering two police officers told authorities that if he hadn't stashed away his weapons while trying to flee, he would have killed other officers as well.

Guy Harvey Baker, was held in $2 million bail on two charges of first-degree murder.

"God, I shouldn't have gotten rid of the guns," authorities quoted Baker as saying.

Ramsey County Attorney Tom Foley called the deaths Friday "two of the cruelest, most sickening, cold-blooded homicides" ever in St. Paul.

At the time of the shootings, Baker was wanted in his home state of Iowa for allegedly violating probation on drug and firearms charges.

In a statement to police released Monday, Baker described how he shot officer Ron Ryan Jr., who found him sleeping in a car in a church parking lot, and then Tim Jones, called in on his day off to join more than 100 other officers in the manhunt for Ryan's killer.

Baker said that after he had killed Jones, who spotted him hiding out in a fish shack, he hid both officers' guns and his own revolver under a pile of scrap lumber.

While hiding under a woodpile, he said he noticed some officers about four feet away. "If I'd had a gun on me, they'd have both been dead," he said in the statement.

He was captured six hours after shooting Ryan.

The Mason City, Iowa, man is the first person charged under the Heinous Crimes Act, a new state law mandating life in prison without parole for anyone convicted of killing a police officer. The law was enacted after the 1992 slaying of a Minneapolis officer.

A grand jury will convene Sept. 7 to decide whether to indict Baker, Foley said.

Defense loses bid to review detective's records

LOS ANGELES (AP) - A judge rejected a request from O.J. Simpson's lawyers to examine a police detective's military records, ruling yesterday that they have no bearing on defense suggestions that the officer is a racist and a liar.

"Having heard the argument by counsel for the defendant alleging racial animus and propensity to fabricate ... the court reviewed the military file and found no reports or other information relevant to the issues in this case," Superior Court Judge Lance Ito said in a written order.

He said he weighed the privacy rights of Detective Mark Fuhrman against the rights of Simpson to gather evidence for his defense and decided against turning over Fuhrman's Marine Corps records.

Ito said he would seal the military file and place it in the court record so that it will be available for appellate review only.

Ito, who heard arguments on the issue Monday, did not rule on the defense bid for review of Fuhrman's police records.

Fuhrman is a key witness in the Simpson case because he said he found a bloody glove behind Simpson's estate. He has been placed on indefinite vacation leave, police Cmdr. David Gascon said yesterday.

Fuhrman's lawyer said earlier the detective was having trouble doing his job due to the publicity surrounding his role in the case.

Anonymous defense sources have said they considered portraying Fuhrman, who is white, as a racist who could have planted evidence to incriminate Simpson, who is black.

Simpson, 47, is charged in the June 12 slashing murders of his ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman. He will be back in court Wednesday for a hearing on a proposed gag order and evidence discovery, including a mystery envelope turned over to another judge by the defense.

Ito has agreed to hear from the media and other interested parties before imposing the gag order, which would stop participants from talking to reporters. He has already ordered that all filings be sealed until they are discussed in open court.

In a motion suggesting both orders are unconstitutional, media attorney Kelli Sager cited other high-profile cases, including those of Charles Manson, Sirhan Sirhan and the Watergate conspirators, and said overwhelming publicity did not deny those defendants fair trials.

"Certainly there has been widespread media attention to this case," Sager said of the Simpson affair. "But it is hardly unprecedented."

Ito also plans to hear defense complaints on Wednesday that prosecutors are not being as forthcoming as they should be in disclosing the evidence they have against Simpson.

In other developments Tuesday:

- CNN reported that chemical treatment of the Bronco revealed more blood than detectives thought existed in the vehicle. The report said use of a chemical which shows blood under a black light disclosed "more blood than someone would have left who just cut their finger unless they bled like a pig." CNN said the blood had been wiped away from visible detection but showed up under the light on the console and an inside door panel.

- CNN also reported that the interior light bulb from the Bronco had been removed and was found under a front seat. The network said sources quoted detectives wondering if Simpson removed the bulb so no one would see him when he opened the door near his ex-wife's condominium.

- The network also reported that an employee of the parking garage where the Bronco was towed was fired for rifling the vehicle for souvenirs and stealing Simpson's gas receipts.

Counselor charged for shooting at campers

NEW YORK (AP) - The Boy Scouts have fired a 24-year-old counselor for allegedly shooting a BB gun at scouts attending a summer camp, hitting one boy between the eyes.

Sean Turner, 24, faces seven counts of assault. He was being held in lieu of $10,000 bail yesterday after pleading innocent in Sullivan County, where the city youths attended the camp.

Turner fired at six of the 12 Scouts under his care, ordering them to dance, police said.

The 14-year-old shot between the eyes suffered a superficial but bloody wound.

"He would point the gun at us and we would all run," police quoted the injured boy as saying. He said he told Turner he "didn't want to play any more."

"He turned around and pointed the pistol at me and fired. The BB hit me between the eyes and I fell down," the youth told state police investigators.

Sullivan County District Attorney Stephen Lungen said the BB gun, a type powered with a cartridge of compressed carbon-dioxide gas, is strong enough to cause serious injury. "We've had a case where someone lost an eye with one of those things," he said.

Turner tearfully told Town Justice Robert E. Luben in court Monday that he hadn't done anything wrong. "I've got two daughters of my own. Why would I do anything like this?" he asked.

Boy Scout spokesman Gary Laermer described Turner as a first-time "seasonal employee," hired as a "site leader" on the recommendation of another employee. Site leaders receive room and board and about $200 a week, he said.

Two other site leaders were fired for failing to report his actions, said Laermer, of the Greater New York Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

Rapper gets eight months in jail

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Grammy-winning rapper Dr. Dre pleaded no contest to drunken driving charges Tuesday and was sentenced to eight months in jail for violating probation from a 1993 battery conviction.

Dr. Dre, whose real name is Andre Young, entered the plea before Municipal Judge Paula Adela Mabrey, who also ordered him to pay a $1,053 fine and attend an alcohol education program.

Young, 28, was arrested Jan. 10 after a chase through Beverly Hills and Westwood in his 1987 Ferrari that police clocked up to 90 mph.

Police said the rapper failed a field sobriety check and submitted to a breath test that showed a blood-alcohol reading of 0.16 percent - twice the state's legal limit of .08.

Young's latest conviction violated terms of his probation on a battery conviction last year. In that case, Young was convicted of punching a man in the face, breaking his jaw, outside the rapper's girlfriend's home.

Four die of mushroom poisoning

KOMSOMOLSK-ON-AMUR, Russia (AP) - Four people have died of mushroom poisoning in the Russian Far East as the mushroom-picking season opens, the ITAR-Tass news agency reported Tuesday.

Doctors unsuccessfully tried to save two men Monday in the city of Komsomolsk-on-Amur, 120 miles west of Russia's Pacific coast. Two other people died recently in the nearby city of Khabarovsk.

Mushroom gathering is a popular pastime for many Russians in the late summer and early fall.

Case for Good Manners Is In Making Good Neighbors

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1993 Universal Press Syndicate

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dear Abby is on a two-week vacation. Following is a selection of some of her favorite past letters from 1977.)

DEAR ABBY: Why do people place so much importance on manners? From the time kids learn to walk and talk, adults hassle them about manners and being polite.

I don't see what good it does to stand up when an older person or a lady comes into the room. And there are dozens of other rules that come under the heading of "manners" that make no sense at all.

Maybe you can explain it to me.

DON'T GET IT

DEAR DON'T: To answer your question, no one said it better than the late and great Amy Vanderbilt:

"Good manners are the traffic rules for society in general. Without good manners, living would be chaotic, human beings unbearable to each other. Reduced to a phrase, good manners are consideration of other people in respect of their feelings, their safety, their privacy, and their full social rights and privileges."

DEAR ABBY: I am a reasonably attractive, well-mannered bachelor in my late 30s who receives many social invitations. I recently turned down an invitation to a dinner party. I frankly told the hostess that I was no longer accepting invitations that did not allow me to bring my own date. Very irately, she told me that if I didn't want to go to parties alone, I should get married.

Why do so many people think a single person should be eager to accept invitations to go to a party alone? I always feel like a fifth wheel, or else I get stuck with a dateless woman who shares my embarrassment. Am I wrong?

SINGLE SIMON

DEAR SIMON: If you'd rather bring your own date than gamble on whom the hostess has paired you off with, say so. But most bachelors are invited to parties to provide escorts for the single women. And I'd like to see the dateless woman who would feel "embarrassed" to find her dinner companion a reasonably attractive, well-mannered bachelor.

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion of the following situation:

When friends drop in, should the hostess excuse herself and put on a pot of coffee, or get a cold drink and serve it with a sandwich, cake, cookies or whatever she has on hand? Or should she ask her guests if they would like a hot drink, a cold one or a sandwich?

My husband and I are on opposite sides of this argument and need you to settle it for us.

MILLIE IN MARYLAND

DEAR MILLIE: The gracious hostess does not inquire. She acts. (P.S. Drop-in visitors should not expect a feed-in.)

IRA arrives in NY on 'private visit'

NEW YORK (AP) - A leader of the Irish Republican Army flew to New York yesterday after the United States granted a rare waiver of its ban against those linked to the outlawed group's acts of terror.

"It's a private visit," said Joseph Cahill before he walked to a car in the parking lot and was driven away.

Cahill and Patrick Treanor, a member of Sinn Fein, the IRA's legal, political wing, were issued limited, single-entry visas yesterday "to enable Sinn Fein officials to garner support in the United States for an end to the violence in Northern Ireland," said State Department spokesman Mike McCurry.

Cahill planned to speak to Irish-American activists later in the week, said a congressional staff member who spoke on condition of anonymity.

There were no plans for the two to meet with U.S. officials.

The 74-year-old Cahill, a leader of the IRA's provisional wing, arrived amid reports that the IRA was on the verge of calling a cease-fire in its long fight to oust the British from Northern Ireland.

Stepping off an Aer Lingus flight from Dublin at Kennedy International Airport, Cahill was met by half a dozen unidentified people and exited quickly through a side door of the terminal with a woman on each side, holding his arm and hand.

It was not clear whether Treanor arrived with him, but Richard McAuley, spokesman for Sinn Fein in Belfast, said Treanor was traveling with Cahill.

Cahill is the most senior IRA-related figure to visit the United States since Sinn Fein leader Gerry Adams made a two-day visit in February - also on a limited visa. Mitchel McGlaughlin, Sinn Fein's northern chairman, visited Cleveland and Washington in May.

Adams said Monday that he had met with IRA leaders and told them the time was right for an end of the violence.

A U.S. official who asked not to be named said Cahill was issued a special waiver of a rule that barred him from entry because of a criminal past. He has been convicted of killing a police officer, of gunrunning and membership in the IRA.

Adams had never been convicted of a criminal offense.

The official said President Clinton's decision to grant the visa was discussed with Irish and British officials beforehand. The official refused to say whether the countries signed off on the decision.

Peter Reid, a spokesman for the British consulate in New York, said only, "It's a matter for U.S. authorities who they issue visas to."

The provisional wing of the IRA, the "provos," was founded 25 years ago, long after the Irish Republic gained its independence. It has been responsible for many acts of terrorism in its effort to force Britain to relinquish control of Northern Ireland.

Cahill was deported from the United States in 1984 for illegal entry after being accused of lying about his past. He said his convictions resulted from political, not criminal, activity.

He was convicted in 1942 with four other men of killing a police officer in Belfast, Northern Ireland, but won a reprieve from a death sentence.

IN THE TERRITORIAL COURT OF THE VIRGIN ISLANDS
DIVISION OF ST. CROIX
NOTICE OF TERRITORIAL COURT MARSHAL'S SALE

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that in compliance with the Judgment entered in the Territorial Court of the Virgin Islands, St. Croix Division dated October 14, 1993 in the matter of Robbin Hartman v. Fakhri Abdul Mustafa a/k/a Fakhri A. Mustafa, Mohammad A. Mustafa and M&F Gas Company, Inc. (Civil No. 520/93) and the Writ of Execution issued therein, the Territorial Marshal shall sell at public auction to the highest bidder at 10:00 a.m. on October 7, 1994 at the Office of the Territorial Marshal, Territorial Court, St. Croix Division, Kingshill, St. Croix, U.S. Virgin Islands, the following described real property situated in St. Croix, U.S. Virgin Islands:

Plot 61 (consisting of 0.8323 U.S. acre) and Plot 61-A (consisting of 0.950 U.S. acres both of Estate Castle Coakley, Queen Quarter, as shown on PWD No. 4017 dated May 9, 1980, and revised February 23, 1984.

For informational purposes only and without warranties or representations of any kind, this property consists of approximately 1.7373 U.S. acres of unimproved property located on the Queen Mary's Highway in the vicinity of H&H Tire, Inc. on the island of St. Croix, U.S. Virgin Islands.

Said sale is made subject to any unpaid real estates taxes and to any and all liens or encumbrances if any (of public record or otherwise) which may be senior to the lien foreclosed by the aforesaid judgment. No warranties or representations of any kind are made with regard to said senior liens, if any.

The conditions of the sale will be read and posted at the time of public auction. Subject to amendment or modification thereof and for infomational purposes only, the Terms of Sale are as follows:

1. Ten percent (10%) of the purchase price must be deposited with the Marshal no later than the close of business on the day of sale, and, upon failure so to do, the Marshal reserves the right to award the sale to the next highest bidder. The balance of the sum bid must be paid within 30 days, or the deposit will be retained by the Marshal as for the liquidated damages and applied toward satisfaction of the judgment for which the property is being sold, and the Marshal further reserves the right, in such event, to award the sale to the next highest bidder.
2. All payments must be made by cash, certified check, bank check or U.S. postal money order. Personal certified checks will not be accepted.
3. The Marshal reserves the right to reject any and all bids not in accordance with the terms of the sale.
4. The Marshal will issue a Certificate of Sale to the purchaser following confirmation of the sale by the Territorial Court of the Virgin Islands, and will issue a Marshal's Deed to the said purchaser, or said purchaser's assignee, upon the expiration of the Virgin Islands' statutory redemption period of six (6) months. The purchaser will be responsible for the payment of the necessary documentary stamps on the deed and for the recording of the deed.
5. Sale is further subject to all the provisions of Title 5, Chapter 43 of the Virgin Islands Code.

the job.

The Roy Schneider-Kenneth Mapp independent team was tight-lipped about who they would support in the race for Washington.

When asked, Mapp said only, "We haye made no decision on that."

Schneider said it was too early and that they would wait until the primary was over before supporting any candidate.

Neither independent candidate Wayne Chinnery nor his running mate, Ike Williams, could be reached yesterday for comments.

of Nevis, was arrested Monday and charged with contempt of court for violating a court restraining order.

He was being held without bail.

- Samuel Roger Leader, 29, of Lindberg Bay was arrested Monday at 10:40 a.m.

Leader, a St. Kitts native was arrested by the police's Insular Investigation Bureau and charged with embezzlement.

It is alleged that, Leader, sometime in November 1993 fraudulently appropriated property that he had been entrusted with.

Bail was set at $1,000.

action island firefighters can take, according to Encarnacion.

Encarnacion said the East End is a high risk area for brush fires because of its abundance of dense, dry foliage made worse by the 10-month long drought.

defendant has elected to be tried by a judge instead.

The state where the execution will take place will be determined by the presiding judge.

According to the new law, in those states (or territories) where there is no death penalty, persons convicted of a capital crime will be sent to a state where there is the death penalty.

"If the law of the state does not provide for the implementation of death, the court shall designate another state, whose law does provide for the sentence of death," reads the text of the new law.

Richard Dieter, of the Death Penalty Information Center in Washington, D.C., said that it would not be a stretch to say that every state and territory in the United States now has the death penalty.

"It's an accurate label," Dieter told the AVIS. "But whether the federal government decides to get back into the execution business remains to be seen."

Dieter said he foresees the government seeking the death penalty in select cases, but doesn't see the floodgates opening, although the potential is there.

The main reason he said for this is the cost.

He cited a Duke University study released last year which concluded that it costs $2 million in defense, prosecution, court and appeal costs before a person is executed - if they ever are.

"Typically, criminal law is handled on the state or territorial level," said Dieter. "If the same case is handled on the federal level you'll see costs skyrocket and where would the money come from?"

The death penalty provision of the crime bill does impose limitations on who can be executed.

It prohibits imposing the death penalty on people who were under the age of 18 at the time of their crime, or who are mentally retard or mentally incompetent. It also suspends execution of women while they are pregnant.

The federal death penalty would not apply to crimes on Indian lands (which are federal lands) unless an Indian tribe elects that the death penalty shall apply.

Prior to the Crime Bill, only a few federal crimes were punishable by death.

Dieter said the federal government has not executed anyone since 1963 and that there are currently six federal prisoners convicted under a prior drug kingpin statute awaiting execution.

The federal Crime Bill breaks new ground in that it significantly expands the list of federal crimes for which the death penalty may be imposed by more than 50.

Under current law, there are only a few federal offenses for which the death penalty can be imposed - airline hijacking that results in death, and certain drug-related murders.

But once President Clinton signs the bill into law, the new federal crimes under which the death penalty can be imposed will include the following:

- Drug trafficking in very large amounts of drugs (even where no death results).
- Killing or attempted killing by a drug kingpin of a public officer or juror in order to obstruct justice.
- Drive-by shooting resulting in death.
- Carjacking, where death results.
- Sexual exploitation of children resulting in death.
- Gun murder during a violent crime or drug trafficking offense.
- Alien smuggling, where death results.
- Murder of a state correctional officer by a prisoner.
- Aircraft hijacking (either domestic or international), where death results.
- Espionage and treason.
- Assassination of the President or Vice President or a Member of Congress, Cabinet member or Supreme Court Justice.
- First degree murder on federal land or property.
- Murder at an international airport.
- Destroying aircraft resulting in death.
- Destroying motor vehicle, where death results.
- Transporting explosives with intent to kill resulting in death.
- Destroying federal property (with explosives) where death results.
- Mailing of injurious articles (e.g. explosives) resulting in death.
- Wrecking a train where death results.
- Bank robbery resulting in death.
- Intentional killing of a foreign official.
- Murder by a federal prisoner serving a life sentence.
- Kidnapping, where death results.
- Murder for hire.
- Racketeering crimes resulting in death.
- Genocide.
- Murder of court officials or jurors in order to obstruct justice.
- Retaliatory murders of witnesses, victims or informants.
- Murder of federal law enforcement officials.
- Murder of a state official, or law enforcement assisting federal officials.
- Torture, where death results.
- Use of weapons of mass destruction (such as biological weapons or poison gas), where death results.
- Attacking a federal facility with firearms resulting in death.
- Violating an individual's federally protected rights based on race, religion or national origin where death results.
- Interfering with religious freedom resulting in death.
- Intentional killing of a person in the federal witness protection program.
- Murder of a U.S. citizen abroad by another U.S. citizen.
- Violence at sea, where death results.

leave up to the fishermen's good judgment," Farchette said. "The commercial fishermen know who the big conch are."

Five DPNR enforcement officers deal with coastal management laws, boating safety, endangered species regulations, land and water pollution regulations and building permits inspections.

"That's impossible with five guys," said Farchette.

"The government doesn't abide by their own laws," McAuliffe said. "They don't need to make new laws, they just need to enforce the ones they already have."

Fish are a renewable resource when people understand basic conservation.

"We're teaching the fellahs how to fish off shore and make a living from the sea," said McAuliffe, whose small fleet of boats employs all Virgin Islanders.

"They are the truest form of entrepreneurship, which should be encouraged by this government," said Sen. Holland Redfield II. "It seems like the ones who make a living off the sweat of their brow in this community get the least amount of help."

Some fishermen are in debt due to hard luck or losing a boat on stormy seas. Available loans of less than $10,000 are grossly inadequate and would hardly help buy a new outboard motor, McAuliffe said.

"These guys that are in this industry are certainly not asking for a handout," said Redfield. "They're asking for a helping hand."

Improved access to off-shore fishing, especially from the south shore, would help the industry, fishermen said.

Organizing a fishermen's committee, comprised of hundreds of commercial and recreational fishermen speaking with one voice, would impact how the government listens to them, Farchette said.

American.

Although American committed to keep coming to St. Croix, it axed Trinidad from its down island routes.

Next month, the Puerto Rico to Trinidad route will be eliminated, forcing down islanders to fly in Liat's smaller aircrafts. That cut will more than likely increase air fares and transport time for travellers.

American and Delta recently announced they will be adding three more flights each to the territory. Delta's schedule will include St. Croix.

Although it's good news for the tourism industry here, Koenke projected at least five more years - and a significant number of changes in the economy - before St. Croix can compete successfully in the market.

"The administration takes a knee jerk approach to a lot of legislation. How can they be opposed to allowing the people to make the choice for themselves," he wondered.

Another veto could get the administration in trouble and damage Hodge's bid for the governor's seat, Redfield said.

"The administration made a serious mistake with the first veto," he said. "Another one could hurt the Hodge-Heath campaign. More than likely, Hodge will make every effort to sign it."

Hodge and his democratic running mate Alfred O. Heath are contending with Republicans Julio Brady and Redfield in the gubernatorial race.

day she uses latex paints and varnish to create a cloth with a definite Caribbean flair.

Theresa Donarski had her fancyfull puppets on view. These "birds" have a life of their own as one can make them walk with a comical gait. Elizabeth Saland exhibited her angelic Christmas ornaments made of wood and gilt. Cane Garden Natural Body care sold their soaps comprised of a fragrant mixture of honey and oatmeal at their booth.

Lari Wagner and her husband Wade could be seen. Her gorgeous paintings of island architecture and t-shirts of tropical hues were available to the many that filled the grounds.

Pam Kerschner displayed her famous oil paintings of Caribbean life. The works are rich in color with elegantly muted shadows.

Gam Lee, Elwood York, Angie Davis, Gerry Groner, John Connor and Richard Harris could be seen among the crowd. The sounds of Bully Petersen's scratch band and Wali Karim's Seahorns filled the air. It was truly a magical afternoon.

Again, the West will be featured in the upcoming weekend. The town of Frederiksted will be the scene for a three day festival from Saturday to Monday.

The rhythms of soca and calypso will rule the evening air. Some of the streets will be closed for dancing and a carnival atmosphere will reign.

Small agreement reached in baseball

(New York) — Major League clubs will have until 48 hours after a strike settlement to set their postseason rosters. Normally, clubs must submit playoff and World Series rosters by September first. But with the walkout in its 19th day, prospects for a settlement by the first of the month appear dim.

The players' association reached the roster accord with the owners.

Teams may not add postseason players who are acquired after tomorrow.

Meantime, the owners have postponed their quarterly meetings, with acting commissioner Allen "Bud" Selig saying they would serve no purpose while the strike continues. The meetings had been scheduled for next week in Detroit.

No new talks to end the walkout are planned.

STX represented at Atlanta Cup

By D.S. SERIEUX
Avis Sports Writer

St. Croix- Soccer masters, a local non profit organization dedicated to improving the sport of soccer in St. Croix Virgin Islands, is taking two youth teams to Atlanta this Thursday September 1, 1994, to represent St. Croix in the Atlanta Cup. This is one of the premier youth tournaments in the nation with over 350 teams from the USA and Canada taking part.

The under 15 (U-15) which is coached by Jackie Layne is comprised of fourteen players while the under 17 has a total of 15 players.

As follows are the names of the players on the under 15 team. Tafari de Four, 'Peter Neilson, Jonas Verhoff, Ricky Schuster, Nehemiah Frey, BJ Joseph, Mikey Nelson, Daniel Stanley, Chevon Huggins, Bryan Ridgway, Caleb Bell, Ariela Hayes, Tesius Francis and Andy Dunton.

The under 17 team is made up of such players as Kita Shillingford, Austin Brown, Danny Colon, Sherwin Robinson, Lisa Mc.Tigue, Doile Peters, Yuhan Joseph, Ben Schumm, Sheldon Robinson, Sarkist Bell, Bennie Labadie, Andy Daley, Mark Curran, Fermin Rodriquez and Franco Vasquez. This team is being coached by E. Robinson.

Both teams were in action for a final practice game on Sunday August 28,1994 at the Country Day School. The under 15 team beat John Woodson JV team 3-1 and the under 17 team beat the St. Croix over 40 10-1.

The St. Croix Soccer Masters International wish to thank all the companies and individuals who helped in raising the funds to cover the cost of the trips.

There was also a raffle held in the fund raising and the lucky winners are Margarita Encarnacion, who picked up first prize and won a round trip ticket to Miami. Keith Williams received a 13 inch color TV at second place and Betty Neilson won a $200.00 shopping spree at third prize.

Graf back on winning track

(New York) — With her back apparently on the mend, Steffi Graf began defense of her U-S Open title by stomping Anne Mall 6-2, 6-1. The match lasted only 45 minutes as Graf bids to reverse early setbacks at the French and Wimbledon championships.

Also at the National Tennis Center yesterday, Kimiko Date , Lindsay Davenport, Jana Novotnaand Gabriela Sabatini joined Graf in round two.

Men's daytime winners included Michael Stich, Stefan Edberg winning in straight sets and Todd Martin and Marc Rosset needing much more time. Martin rallied from two sets down to beat Guillaume Raoux, while Rosset spotted Mark Woodforde the first two sets before roaring back.

Tomorrow, defending men's champion Pete Sampras makes his '94 Open debut when he plays Kevin Ullyett.

Lions devour the Red Sox

By D.S. SERIEUX
Avis Sports Writer

In game four Sunday evening at Frederiksted, Lions took the victory over Red Sox with a final score of 12-7.

The game went on as a 3-1 ball game from the first inning till the bottom of the third as Lions picked up a three run homer and closed the third with a score of 7-1.

Red Sox scored an additional run at the top of the fourth and so did the Lions at the bottom of that inning. At the end of four complete innings, Lions led Red Sox 8-2.

With a two run homer at the top of the fifth, Red Sox came within four with the Lions. They left a runner stranded on base but the Lions were not halfway through with them.

Lions came forth to render a 10-4 ball game at the end of the fifth inning.

Both of those teams went on to score two additional runs throughout the rest of the game. Lions had the bases loaded twice at the bottom of the sixth and left two stranded on base as Red Sox took it to the top of the seventh inning.

In that half of the inning, Ray Fawkes had a homerun and so did Junior Antoine. That half was closed with a ground out and Lions walked out as the winner that night.

Red Sox ask for O-K on Jordan

(Chicago) — The Chicago White Sox have asked the Arizona Fall League to add outfielder Michael Jordan to the Scottsdale roster. Sox general manager Ron Schueler says he expects to hear in seven to ten days. Under rules of the instructional league, Major League clubs can send six players. Jordan — a former pro basketball star — would be Chicago's seventh man. Jordan's Double-A season in Birmingham ends Saturday. The two-month Arizona Fall League starts October sixth.

Calling women anglers

Women anglers get ready! The Eighth Annual Fishin' Lady Classic is set for September 17, 1994 on St. Croix.

This popular tournament is the only sportsfishing event in the Virgin Islands where all the anglers are female. Besides being lots of fun and promoting ladies fishing, it is an important fund raiser for the Women's Coalition of St. Croix.

This year, pre-registration for anglers will be on Monday, September 12 at Cheeseburgers in Paradise at 6 p.m. The final registration and the captains/anglers meeting will be on Friday, September 16 at 6 p.m., also at Cheeseburgers in Paradise. On Saturday, September 17, it's fishing all day! Lines will go in at 6 a.m. and out at 3 p.m. The weigh-in will be at the Christiansted Wharf between 3 p.m. and 5 p.m. Prizes will be given during the awards brunch at the Blue Marlin Restaurant on Sunday, September 18 from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m.

The major sponsors for the 1994 Fishin' Lady Classic are the Law Office of Lee J. Rohn and the Law Offices of Joel H. Holt. Supporting co-sponsors are Leeward Real Estate and Charlie's Concrete Services, Inc.

"We expect this year's tournament to be bigger and better. The full moon should help bring out an abundance of fish," said committee member Claudette Anderson. "We are looking for additional captains - male or female - to enter their boats so more anglers can participate."

Fifty-six anglers took to the waters last year in search of the ultimate catch. Karen Michaels earned the best angler award with a 46.2 pound wahoo.

Qualifying fish include blue marlin, white marlin, sailfish, yellow fin tuna, dolphin, wahoo and kingfish.

Both captains and anglers are needed. For more information, call the Women's Coalition at 773-9272.

The WCSC is a nonprofit organization dedicated to ending violence and the oppression of racism and sexism in our community. We help victims of all crimes. Address: No. 7 East Street, P.O. Box 2734, Christiansted 00822. Phone: 773-9272; Fax: 773-9062.

11th Annual Labor Day 5K

All are welcome to participate in the 11th Annual Labor Day 5K Road Race set for Labor Day Monday, September 5.

Runners will begin registration at 5:30 a.m. at the starting point of the race at Southgate in St. Croix. The distance of the race is 5 kilometers (3.1 miles). The race finishes in Christiansted near the Post Office.

Awards will be made to top finishers male and female.

For more information call V.I. Pace Runners 773-7171.

German racer loses appeal

(Paris) — The International Automobile Federation has upheld the two-race suspension of Michael Schumacher, who'll miss the Italian and Portuguese Grand Prix events next month.

The German, who has won seven of the first eleven Formula-One races this year, had appealed the penalty received for ignoring a black flag last month in Britain.

Schumacher leads the world driver standings with 76 points, 21 more than Britain's Damon Hill. Each victory counts ten points.

Schumacher finished first in last weekend's Belgian Grand Prix, only to be disqualified for carrying a too-thin wooden plank under his car.
