News Items On Postal Affairs: FURNISHED BY THE POSTMASTER AT CHRISTIANSTED.

The attention of prospective patrons of the Postal Savings is invited to the fact that postal savings deposits which may not exceed $2500 per depositor can be converted into postal savings bonds, and that there is no limitation upon the amount of postal savings bonds which may be owned by a depositor. Postal savings bonds are exempt from all taxes or duties of the United States as well as from taxation in any form by or under State, municipal or local authority. These bonds are also transferable and may be sold or disposed of by the depositor at any time to any one whomsoever. The bonds bear 2½% interest and are redeemable after one year from date of issue, and payable 20 years from such date.

The price of postage stamped envelopes was reduced effective January 1, 1922. For from 82 cents to $1.93 in addition to the postage value of the stamp embossed on the envelope, and according to size and quality, you may have 500 envelopes with your name and address printed in the upper left hand corner. Envelopes spoiled in process of addressing or otherwise, are redeemed at postal value. Blue, white, or manila, high-back or low-back, window envelopes, in several denominations can be ordered at the local post office, in the lobby of which a list of prices may be consulted.

Although six months have elapsed since Pueblo, Colo., was overwhelmed by flood the American Red Cross is still carrying on the rehabilitation work that succeeded the disaster relief service it rendered at the time the river broke its banks. A report by Robert S. Gast, City Relief Agent appointed by the Pueblo City Commissioners, reveals the effectiveness of this work and the deep appreciation felt by the citizens of the Colorado city.

"In the first place", states Mr. Gast, "of the $500,000 that has been or will be used in our disaster relief all except about $148,000 was contributed by the American Red Cross—that is to say, by the National Organization or by Red Cross Chapters throughout the world.

"This fund is being efficiently and sympathetically administered by a highly trained, experienced and thoroughly competent personnel who have had the counsel of an advisory committee of local business and professional men of the highest standing.

"The Red Cross National organization is bearing all overhead expenses and all charges of administration, so that every dollar subscribed goes directly to our flood sufferers, without deduction of any kind or for any purpose."

Chapters as far away as Hankow China and Chuquicamata, Chile, contributed to this fund through the Insular and Foreign Division.

Should disaster, such as hurricane, earthquake or fire, descend upon St. Croix, the same readiness to serve as always characterizes the Red Cross would be evidenced.

New York, Jan. 23rd.—Influenza cases have been reported to the Health Department in the last three days at the rate of thirty cases a day while cases of grippe, tonsillitis, severe colds and pneumonia have been far more serious than is common, Health Commissioner Copeland said yesterday. Influenza is showing a serious increase, he said, "and is undoubtedly occurring at a rate considerably above thirty cases a day, as many cases are not reported. This is the same disease that we suffered in 1918 and is just as deadly at present, the only difference being that it is not epidemic but there is a tremendous amount of influenza in Paris and London and we have to be fearful here."

London, Jan. 23rd.—Civilian and official England today was mourning the death of Viscount Bryce of Dechmont who passed away at Sidmouth yesterday. Announcement of the death of the famous statesman, author and diplomat, was unexpected, it not being generally known that he was in a serious condition. Weakness of the heart intervened in his illness and the end came very suddenly.

London, Jan. 23rd.—The Irish situation took a surprising and unexpected turn Saturday with the announcement that Michael Collins, head of the Irish Provisional Government and Sir James Craig, Premier, had arrived at a mutual agreement which held out the promise of a peaceful settlement between North and South. It was all the more surprising in view of the fact that Mr. Collins had only left Dublin last night to enter into consultation with Sir James Craig this morning. In addition to the arrangements made to settle the boundary question, it was decided to cease forthwith mutual boycotts. What is considered of vast importance is the decision to devise a better system than the council of Ireland as provided in the 1920 act, to deal with problems affecting the whole of Ireland. The Ulster Unionists naturally will welcome the raising of the boycott, but are apprehensive of trouble with the shipyard workers on the question of the restoration of Catholic workmen expelled in July 1920 after the murder of Colonel Amythe in Cork.

Dublin, Jan. 23rd.—Satisfaction with the agreement reached late last night between Michael Collins and Sir James Craig, the Premier of Ulster, relative to the boundary between North and South Ireland was expressed today by the Independent. It is a great and decided advance toward Irish Union, the newspa-
