Dear Mr. Yohansen:

We are glad to see that Mr. Svendsen has not raised his price of his movies. Daddy thinks that if he lowered his price twenty three and a half per cent it would be just rite. Because he thinks that he has been ahead of the game all the time. Daddy says he hears that the employees of the Municipality of St. Thomas are paid off in American money. I hope to see some of the eagles fly over here as the marines always axe to get their change in American money, not wishing to take any chances with "spick money". Yesterday Krazy lost a button off his pants; his mother makes him save them to sew on again, so he put it in his pocket; later on we went in to Mr. Innis's store to buy a top, and Krazy gave the button in a mistake for a five cents piece, and Mr. Innis axed him if he wanted the percentage, and you know Mr. Innis is a good business man.

Yours truly

JONNIE IGNATZ.

SELFISHNESS.

Selfishness is an art of the mind to hoard or to keep everything for oneself, regardless of the rights of others. It is a scheming fox-like spirit. When carried out to its limit will ruin any school or community.

ON THE HIGH COST OF LIVING.

In an editorial under the caption of "Don't pay it", the Pathfinder of October 11th. says: "Relief from the high cost of living rests with the individuals; the remedy is in their hands. High prices are largely due to the willingness of the public to pay any price that is asked. High prices have become almost a joke, and people even brag about how much they pay for things. Thus they themselves keep bidding prices up.

"Much of the trouble is also due to the fact that people are willing to pay about 25 per cent for value and 75 per cent for style. The shoe manufacturers are again changing the styles on us. We say it in all seriousness: Some of them ought to be hung. An example should be made of them.

"If you are silly enough to pay prices of this sort, don't blame "the high cost of living"; blame the passion for style and your own willingness to be imposed upon.

"A committee of four farmers not long ago came to Washington to give their views on the high cost of living. They went into the most high-toned restaurant in the city and they paid $11 for their lunch. They figured that about 80 cents represented the actual value of the articles consumed, and they laid the other $10.20 to the middlemen and profiteers. Their experience has been published all over the country, as a proof of the way the innocent public are gouged.

"A Scotchman in New York the other day went into a restaurant and on finding an order of roast beef would cost him 90 cents he ejaculated: 'I'll no pay it!' He bolted and went across the street and filled up on crackers and milk for 25 cents.

"Now, if Americans would show the independence and canny common sense that this Scotchman showed and would refuse to pay exorbitant prices they would soon bring things down to a reasonable basis. Of course all prices are bound to be high now, but there is no excuse for paying several times what a thing is worth.

"Remember that Scotchman when someone wants to charge you a price which you know is outrageous. Simply say: 'I won't pay it!' Then, find some way to serve yourself at less cost; or, if necessary go without. A little deprivation isn't going to hurt you. Think what the soldiers have suffered. Are you any better than they are?

"A Kansas paper tells about a farmer who went into a store a few days ago and bought a school outfit for his nine-year old boy. He paid $8 for his shoes and then bought him a suit, overcoat and cap for a total of $60 a very moderate outlay for these times, and nothing extra good at that", says the account.

"This is a good example of how people allow themselves to be "done". And then, instead of taking the blame themselves, they shift it onto others. Somebody is profiteering, they complain, and they let it to go like that. It is they who make the profiteering possible. We say here and now that any farmer who pays $68 for a suit, overcoat, cap and shoes for a boy of nine should go to school in place of the boy and let the boy run the farm and handle the money

"Such people need a guardian, if no a nurse. If they know enough to loof around and use a little judgment they need not pay over half as much. The big mail-order houses are still furnishing goods at reasonable prices and if local dealers do not do the fair thing by their patrons, their patrons should buy what they need elsewhere. It is their money that is being spent, and they are entitled to get value for it.

"And so we tell you now: If you feel
