Correspondence

Mr. Editor.

Sir:—

The following questions having been put to me and being unable to answer I presume some information may be had through your columns.

1. Is the right of franchise not a dual one, entitling voters to be likewise voted for as members of the Colonial Council?
2. Does the Act of Congress of 12 July a. c. not forbid persons owing allegiance to other countries than the United States of America the right of being Council members, and consequently also the right of voting for others?
3. Did any such persons vote for the candidates last Saturday?
4. If so was the election consistent and will measures passed by this Council be valid?
