EDITORIAL.

The Herald says the Avis is vainly trying to repair a basket of broken eggs. It is not a question of repairing broken eggs, but of showing that we didn't break them and make the mess

LOCAL.

The S. S. Parima from New York arrived at Frederiksted at 4 p. m. yesterday with general cargo for the island and 48 bags mail for Christiansted.

Correspondence.

Mr. Editor!—

Are you not afraid? Or hav't you heard!

"The Island is in the grasp of the Devil, and the mouth of Hell is come near to St. Croix."

Hm!— "No wonder the temperature is high."

Fail to see how he come to get hold of it:—something must have attracted him:—Shouldn't wonder if he has'nt been reading some of these newspapers of late,—and from the writing therein, seen the great state of peaceful contentment, all the people here are living in!—O, could it be thought that he should have outwitted some of the big Landholders playing Pooker Dice.

It is said he is accustomed to great heat;—this is somewhat unfortunate; because otherwise it would have been worth while for a couple of fellows, to get hold of him, and try to fool him in to visit the different printing plant.

The heat in some of them might have so scared him;—that it did make him lose his grasp and leave the Island.

It can be well understood, people has to be careful and take precaution; not knowing what he is up to; and therefore have to take Armor on.

Now!—would'nt it have been just nice, and even so much better if the people could have taken on A-m-o-r.

It is said that he is such a delightful fellow, and makes people feel so happy. So certainly, it would have been much better to have him here, on the Island than the Devil.

Yours,

JACK RABBITT.
