The Editor of this paper has been again honored with two additional protests from Roman Catholics. We trust these are the last. We do not know what to do with the many lists of names and have therefore posted them on the door of this office where anyone may read them. Something striking in these "protests" is the conspicuous absence of the names of many good Catholics—that is, of good, intelligent men and women who are Catholics.

Peg O' the Ring concluded at the theatre last night amid ringing cheers. We hope to soon have a similarly attractive number.

6½ lines of rain was measured at the Fort this morning.

Dear Mr. Yohansen:

Today is Sunday, the day when in time past people used to go to church with their prayer-book, and a cent to throw in the plate. Besides subscripshun, today we are having conscripshun as an ekstra feature; but I am not going to rite you about that now, I am going to copy a letter I found on Daddy's desk, that a friend in Frederiksted rote him.

Dear Mr. Ignatz, Sir:

You presumably remember that in the course of an argument between us during the war, you refuted my statement that "Prussianism" would continue to exist long after peace was established. You may now admit that that is not only the case, but is exemplified even close at hand. Do you not see "Bill" with his intimate circle subtly leading a people into strife? a people who by circumstance are so allied in business, social, and other relations that they themselves are expressive of the detrimental consequences of such proceedings. Do you not see behind this movement the same motive as that behind the Hohenzollerns? Ambition! Not satisfied to dominate over a limited faction of the community, we find the "Clutching Hand" of the "Hohenzollern" having failed in the open, in the dark at work trying to fashion things after his own liking. I can only conclude in hoping that all of our people will not allow themselves to be buffaloes, but will exercise proper judgment at this time."

And so on,—I have not space to rite any more of the letter as I do not want to take up the hole Avis. But "he that hath tears to shed," prepare to shed them next Tuesday when I rite my little poem, "When the role is called up yonder, little Jonnie won't be there".

Yours truly

JONNIE IGNATZ.

THE VOICE OF THE PRESS.

As I sit on my chair at the window,
While setting type I reflect
On our editorials lately,
And our future course project.

I know I'm but an apprentice
And you Proprietor, boss;
But never-the-less y'll accept this,
And my sentiments endors'.

You've shown us all I wager,
That you wait on truth's command,
And not on individual dictates
Of new-comers to the land.

When in Rome we do as Romans
In St. Croix as Crucians do,
And those who cannot "get this"
Had better bid adieu.

Where tropic-breezes waft us,
And beauty lives in sight,
'Tis sacrilege to mar it
With blind religious fight.

You've stood for Reason, freedom;
The Herald has the same;
Mr. Ovesen's this time neutral,
But we know he would be game.

We're ready now to stop it;
We're ready now to quit,
But Oh boy! Oh boy!
We've done it, we've done our little bit.

CONTRIBUTED.
