OUR DEAD.

Sunday is the last of the Church Year. The service at the Lutheran Church is a memorial of OUR DEAD.

"There is no place where unaided reason is so much at loss as in the presence of death and among the sepulchers of the departed. While yet unvisited by the light of revelation that whole realm to man is one starless night—a land of darkness, horror and despair. Hence the superabundant manifestations of grief and woe that have marked the funeral rites of the heathen world".

The only light that gladdens the grave is that of the Gospel. This Gospel, our hymns of faith and thought, gather round us for a farewell service to those who have gone to glory.

The Thanksgiving Service.

On Thursday, the day appointed for our annual Thanksgiving, a Thanksgiving Service will be held in the Lutheran Church, beginning at 10 A. M. The Thanksgiving Psalms and Lessons and Hymns with an offering for our needy ones will be the order of Service.

EDITORIAL.

With reference to a communication in yesterday's issue concerning the neglected condition of the graveyard, the chairman of the cemetery commission advises the Avis for further information to the public that the cleaning and general care of the cemetery is no longer within the province of the commission having two years ago been transferred to the Public Works Department under which is now budgetted the appropriation heretofore assigned to and expended by the cemetery commission for such purposes. Dr. Canegata concedes that the burial ground is in poor shape.

LOCAL.

A sub-chaser came to Frederiksted yesterday with the Acting Government Secretary who paid a flying visit to this town.

A baseball match was played on Parade Ground yesterday afternoon. Officers versus Marines. The latter won.

The S. S. Guiana arrived at Frederiksted at daybreak today on the way to New York via St. Thomas.

The Creole is here but has not brought any mail.

No news of the Virginia up to the time of going to press.

Individual lighting plants are becoming popular; Mr. P. L. La Bega is now preparing to install one to light his residence and ice-cream parlor and perhaps other places, he says.
